LINGAFELTERS GRANTED NEW TRIAL BY CIRCUIT COURT

Prosecutor Announces Cases Will be Called in Common Pleas January Term

Opinion Delivered by Judge Taggart Late Monday Afternoon at Mt. Vernon--Defendants Shed Tears When Decision Was Announced.

Prosecuting Attorney J. R. Fitzgibbon made formal request of Judge Charles W. Seward Tuesday noon to have the Lingafelter cases assigned for trial in Common Pleas court at Newark on January 15.

The prosecutor took this action in view of the circuit court decision at Mt. Vernon late Monday afternoon, granting James F. and Robert C. Lingafelter new trials.

"The cases will be tried on the new indictments," said the prosecutor. "I think that we can get a new jury in Licking county just as easy as we could in Knox county and will make an effort to have the cases tried here."

It is believed that the defense will agree to this as it was said at the time of the trial at Mt. Vernon that the cases could have been tried in the Licking county courts with as little prejudice as was experienced at Mt. Vernon.

While the prosecutor is disappointed at the circuit court's decision regarding the Lingafelter cases for new trial, he is nevertheless gratified at the court's ruling on the admission of evidence. A telephone message from Prosecutor Stillwell who assisted Mr. Fitzgibbon in the Mt. Vernon trials says the court ruled in the state's favor on the evidence, but remanded the cases for misconduct in arguments to the jury and in questions propounded to the witnesses.

B. G. Smythe who represented the Lingafelters in Mt. Vernon, is jubilant over the circuit court's decision.

Mt. Vernon, Dec. 19.—James F. Lingafelter, of Newark, and his son, Robert C. Lingafelter convicted by a jury in the Knox county Common Pleas court last spring, for forgery in connection with the failure of the Homestead Building and Loan Association, and sentenced to serve five years in the Ohio penitentiary, will get another trial. Late Monday afternoon the decision was handed down by the circuit court of Knox county composed of Judges Donahue, McCarty and Taggart. James F. and Robert C. Lingafelter were in court.

Judge Taggart reviewed the case, and stated that it was necessary for the state to show there was an attempt to defraud in the charge of forgery, and it was clearly shown that it was a scheme arranged by both defendants to secure money fraudulently, and that they did accomplish their purpose by means of forgery. Thus the court held that the receipt was a forgery, supporting the state on this portion of the grounds for error. It was on the grounds of misconduct on the part of the attorneys for the state, however, that gave the two Lingafelters a new trial. On this point Judge Taggart read from the proceedings of the case and pointed out the allegedly improper language and misconduct practiced by both Prosecuting Attorney Fitzgibbon of Licking county, and Prosecuting Attorney Stillwell of Knox.

In summing up the case Judge Taggart stated that it was the unanimous opinion of the three judges that James F. and Robert C. Lingafelter should have a new trial on the grounds of misconduct on the part of the state's attorneys while on the other hand two of the circuit judges were of the opinion that the case should be reversed for the reason that the judge in the lower court erred in his charge to the jury. Judge Taggart alone dissenting from this opinion.

The bonds in each case were fixed at $5,000, and were promptly signed by Rev. Father O'Rylian and a sister of James F. Lingafelter, both of Newark.

"Both cases will be up for trial at the January term of the Common Pleas court," said Prosecuting At-the attorneys will line up for another whirl on the motion for a new trial on the part of Mrs. Taggart. A very large number of affidavits have been filed by Mrs. Taggart's lawyers in support of their claims, while Captain Taggart's counsel have affidavits contradictory of those, by citizens, for Mrs. Taggart. The affidavits for both are from very reputable people.

During the closing days of the trial it was reported that Captain Taggart was paying marked attention to a niece of Judge Eason, and the reports had it that he was already engaged to the young lady. The lady, when asked as to the truth of the rumors, denied the report, as did Capt. Taggart. It is stated that a number of affidavits will be presented to show that Captain Taggart did pay attention to the lady, the object in so doing, claim Mrs. Taggart's attorneys, being to influence Judge Eason to make a decision in Taggart's favor. Captain Taggart has made affidavit denying the insinuations in the documents.

Mrs. Taggart's attorneys have also made some statements in their affidavits that doubtless will raise the ire of Judge Eason, and it is expected that there will be some scathing remarks.

The deposition of the agent of Mrs. Taggart read during trial stated that $80,000 of her funds were invested in the Equitable Trust, Chicago, one of the financial concerns which failed yesterday.

BROODED

Over the Loss of Riches and Finally Leaped Into the River From a Bridge.

Elkhart, Ind., Dec. 19.—Mrs. Anna Brandt, 68 years old, a widow, who lost everything she had saved in the Indiana National Bank failure, cut a gash inside her elbow yesterday, climbed to the top of an eight-foot railing at the Middleburg street bridge in plain view of spectators, who were too much surprised to interfere, and dropped into the Elkhart river. Three hours later her body was recovered half a mile down stream. One daughter, Miss Mae Brandt, aged 25, survives. Mrs. Brandt's husband was once wealthy, but met business reverses before his death. After the bank failed Mrs. Brandt brooded much over the change in her mode of living. She was born in London.

CHICAGO TRAGEDY

Couple Who Had Separated Met On Street Today and Shooting Followed.

Chicago, Dec. 19.—Mrs. Benia Ruchniewicz, 40, was shot and killed by her husband, August, aged 45, in a street near their home today. Ruchniewicz ahen probably fatally shot himself. The couple had separated. The woman had refused to return to the man. The couple met this morning and the tragedy resulted.

MONKEY

Reared by the Priest Forgot His Moral Training and Booze Caused His Downfall.

New Orleans, La., Dec. 19.—After 22 years of association with a devout priest, during which he received a training such as falls to the lot of few monkeys, "Jake," a Simian, residing at the City Park, has been expelled for conduct said to be due to intoxicating drinks. Father Forge, of Lafayette, bought "Jake," from a passing Italian, and reared him with great care. Attaining his majority "Jake" was put to work, and in time assumed the duties of sexton at Father Forge's chapel. He was especially proficient in ringing the bell at the church and in answering the door-bell at the rectory.

When Father Forge died a few months ago "Jake," by bequest, took up his residence in the City Park in this city. He has now been expelled from the resort for acting as no monkey should. Beer, soda pop and whisky are said to be responsible for his downfall.

HALF DOZEN ENTOMBED.

New York, Dec. 19.—Half a hundred men were working like Trojans today in the attempt to rescue a half dozen men who are entombed in the Pennsylvania railroad tunnel in Long Island city. To the horror of the situation is added the possibility that the entombed men may be drowned by the rush of water from Newtown creek when the tide reaches its highest point.

ROBBERS FRIGHTENED AWAY.

St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 19.—Four bank burglars blew open the safe of the bank at Baldwin, Ill., this morning. They were frightened away before they got much booty.

RUN STARTS

On Bedford National as a Result of Collapse in Chicago

WALSH A HEAVY STOCKHOLDER

PRESIDENT TURNS OVER ALL OF HIS AND WIFE'S PROPERTY

Now Stated That Assets Will Exceed Liabilities by Several Millions.

Bedford, Ind., Dec. 19.—The report received yesterday that the Chicago National bank, of which John R. Walsh was president, has gone into liquidation, resulted in a run on the Bedford National here today. Mr. Walsh is president and a heavy stockholder of the Bedford National. It is alleged that Walsh secured $20,000 from the Bedford bank, but returned it last night. The Bedford National's officers claim to have total resources of $343,000 and deposits which amount to $269,500 today.

Chicago, Dec. 19.—This morning straggling depositors in the Home Savings and Chicago National banks appeared in Monroe street. Quite a line of men and women awaited the opening of the financial institutions of John R. Walsh. While there was no evidence of great perturbation of mind, it was apparent that the uneasiness of alarm was there, despite the strong guarantee of the associated banks of Chicago that each depositor would receive his money with all dispatch possible. The police force maintained order.

JOHN R. WALSH

Turns Over All His Own Property and That Standing in His Wife's Name.

Chicago, Dec. 19.—As telegraphed the Advocate yesterday, John R. Walsh who was president of the Chicago National bank and Equitable Trust company, has resigned. His resignation has been followed by that of all the other officers. Bank Examiner C. H. Bosworth has succeeded Mr. Walsh as the head of the Chicago National and the other places have been filled by men appointed by the Chicago clearing house. Back of the new management stands the allied banks of Chicago, so there is no doubt that all depositors will be protected.

The immediate cause of the collapse is said to be the large amount of money which they have loaned to various private enterprises of Mr. Walsh. Mr. Walsh has turned over all his own property and that standing in his wife's name.

The directors of the two banks, as well as Mr. Walsh, who has turned over all his private property, as well as that standing in the name of Mrs. Walsh, have pledged real estate and securities valued at $5,000,000, making a total in assets of $29,000,000, estimating the railroad bonds at $5,000,000, against $26,000,000 liabilities.

BANKER DREYER

Just Free From Prison Whither He Was Sent by John R. Walsh. Money Not Tight.

Chicago, Dec. 19.—Assurances that the salvage from the wreck of the Walsh failure will exceed the original estimates were forthcoming early today. John J. Mitchell of the new directorate liquidating the Walsh affairs, stated today that offers for Walsh's railroad securities had been received. The new directorate has valued the securities at $1,000,000 to be on the safe side in estimating their value. There was no stringency visible according to views expressed by the Chicago bankers. Regular customers are today accommodated to the first extent at 6 per cent.

"There is no apprehension felt," said Cashier Woodworth of the Manufacturers Bank today. "We will not be tight, nor do we fear any additional bank troubles as a result of the closing of the Walsh failure. There is plenty of money in the market. The prosperity of the United States as a result of the bumper crop harvested last fall place us in a strong position."

Comptroller Ridge appeared at Chicago National bank today to complete his investigation of its affairs. Mr. Ridge declined to discuss any specific violations of the banking laws that may have been uncovered, explaining that to do such a thing would be to reveal government evidence.

Meanwhile the doors of the Chicago bank swung open and the work of paying out $26,000,000 to depositors began. John R. Walsh appeared at the bank early. He appeared careworn, worried and aged.

Edward S. Dreyer, former Chicago banker just released from the penitentiary at Joliet, stepped from the door of his home today, picked up the morning papers and returned to his fireside to read of the disaster which has overtaken John R. Walsh.

It was the dawn of Mr. Dreyer's first day of freedom. It was the first time he has been able to read the daily papers for nearly seven years. Mr. Walsh, it is generally conceded, was responsible for the sending of Dreyer to prison.

Nine years ago there was a meeting of the clearing house association to consider the failure of the Illinois National bank. Certain members of the association were in favor of going to the aid of the disabled bank. But Mr. Walsh was in control and he decided against lending a helping hand, in consequence the bank was closed.

The suicide of First Vice President W. A. Hammond and of Otto Wasmansdorf followed. Dreyer was sent to the penitentiary.

NATURALIZATION

Commission Appointed by President Roosevelt Makes Its Report Public Today.

Washington, Dec. 19.—The report of the naturalization commission appointed by the President was made public today. It recommends uniform certificate of naturalization, that no one shall hereafter be admitted to citizenship who does not intend to reside permanently in the United States and who does not know the English language. To prevent naturalization frauds, for political purposes the commission recommends that no naturalization be conferred within thirty days next preceding a presidential or congressional election, and that a uniform fee of at least seven dollars be charged. It recommends naturalization be restricted to federal courts or a state court so as to fasten the responsibility.

FOR PROTECTION

Of Americans in Shanghai, Two of Uncle Sam's Vessels Reached Port This Morning.

Washington, Dec. 19.—In response to appeals from Consul General J. Linn Rodgers of Columbus, O., at Shanghai for assistance, the cruiser Baltimore and gunboat Villalobos arrived this morning at Woo Sung, the deep sea harbor of Shanghai. It is assumed that by this time that a marine guard has been landed from the two vessels for the protection of Americans and other foreigners. The Baltimore is commanded by Captain Sargent, former aide to Admiral Dewey.

SEIZED

His Father's Revolver and Shot Himself Rather Than Submit to a Whipping.

Memphis, Tenn., Dec. 19.—"I'll kill myself if you whip me." With this threat 13 year old Ralph Hart broke from the restraining grasp of his mother, seized a revolver and sent a 22 calibre bullet through his brain. He died several hours later.

The tragedy occurred at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Hart, parents of the boy, 65 Spruce street yesterday. Mrs. Hart is prostrated with grief, and is in a serious condition.

H. M. Hart, father of the boy, is a commercial traveler employed by the American Woodwork and Machine company, having his headquarters at New Orleans.

Mrs. Hart had threatened to whip the boy for disobeying her, when he was anxious to get away to school.

FITZSIMMONS

Favorite in the Betting Today at San Francisco—Both Men Are Confident.

San Francisco, Dec. 19.—For ten days Jack O'Brien was quoted a 10 to 5 favorite over Fitzsimmons in the betting. Fitz money poured into the poolrooms and 10 to 3 with Fitz the favorite is now the price.

Fitzsimmons and O'Brien are both afraid to fight and each has an abundance of confidence.

ADA DAVIS MURDER CASE GOES TO JURY AT 11:15 THIS MORNING

Those Who Predicted Speedy Agreement and Waited in Court Room Were Disappointed

Over 60 Witnesses Examined in Case Which Has Occupied Court's Attention for Six Days--Outline of Judge Coyner's Charge.

At 3:30 o'clock this afternoon the Ada Davis jury has made no report. The jurors have been considering the case since 11:15 this morning. The jury has not asked for further instructions. A crowd is present in the court rooms expecting a verdict at any moment.

At 11:15 o'clock Tuesday morning, the Ada Davis murder case was given to the jury which had listened patiently for four days to the evidence offered by nearly sixty-five witnesses, and for two days more to the exhaustive pleas of the counsel on both sides. Prosecutor Fitzgibbon finished his argument in rebuttal of the remarks of Attorney B. G. Smythe, who finished his argument Monday night. Judge Coyner read his charge to the jury. It covered over twenty pages of typewritten manuscript and covered every point in the case and instructed the jurors how to consider and apply the evidence in the case. An outline of the court's charge is given below.

While Attorney Smythe was arguing the case before the jury, Monday afternoon, his remarks were frequently applauded by the big crowd which filled the court room. It was only when the court threatened to clear the room, that the applauding was stopped.

Judge Coyner's Charge.

Judge Coyner delivered an exhaustive charge to the jury Tuesday morning. After reciting the charge in the indictment, accusing Ada Davis of first degree murder the court said in part:

To the charges made in this indictment, the defendant has pleaded "not guilty." She has thereby put in issue each and every matter alleged in the indictment that is essential to constitute any of the offenses which may be included under said indictment. The law presumes that every person charged with crime to be innocent and this legal presumption of innocence, abides with her as a cloak and shield for her protection during the whole trial and until by proofs she has been proven guilty of the offense for which she is on trial by evidence showing this beyond a reasonable doubt. So before you can find Ada Davis guilty, you must find that every essential element of the offense of which you find her guilty has been proven beyond a reasonable doubt. Evidence which will warrant a conviction must be such as to exclude every reasonable hypothesis of innocence.

"A verdict of guilty can never be returned without convincing evidence. The law is too humane to demand a conviction while a rational doubt remains in the minds of a jury."

"In human affairs absolute certainty is not always attainable. From the nature of things reasonable certainty is all that can be attained on many subjects. When a full, candid consideration of the evidence produces a conviction of guilt, and satisfies the mind to a reasonable certainty a more candid or ingenious artificial doubt is of no avail. You will look, then, to all the evidence, and if that satisfies you of the defendant's guilt you must say so."

The charge here made against the defendant of murder in the first degree, includes within itself the lesser offense of murder in the second degree, manslaughter, assault and battery, and assault. There are, therefore, six possible conclusions which you may reach in this case.

First. You may find the defendant not guilty of murder in the first degree, and not guilty of murder in the second degree, but guilty of manslaughter, assault and battery, and assault.

Second. You may find her not guilty of murder in the first degree, but guilty of murder in the second degree.

Third. You may find the defendant not guilty of murder in the first degree and not guilty of murder in the second degree, but guilty of manslaughter, assault and battery, and assault.

Fourth. You may find the defendant not guilty of murder in the first degree, but guilty of manslaughter, assault and battery, and assault.

Fifth. You may find the defendant not guilty of murder in the first degree; not guilty of murder in the second degree, and not guilty of manslaughter, but guilty of assault.

Sixth. You may return a general verdict of "not guilty," this meaning that she is not guilty of any offense under the indictment. * * *

"If you should find from the evidence beyond a reasonable doubt, that Hammond was shot by Ada Davis, that the shooting was neither excusable nor justifiable, then malice is presumed by the law, and the crime was murder in the second degree and all circumstances of justification, excuse or extenuation must have been proved not beyond a reasonable doubt, but by a preponderance of the evidence, by the defendant, unless these circumstances were proved by the evidence adduced by the State. And if the State seeks to elevate the crime to murder in the first degree it must be proved beyond a reasonable doubt, that the malice was deliberate and premeditated.

"Criminal homicide, by the laws of the State of Ohio, is divided into three kinds. Murder in the first degree, which is defined as follows: Whoever purposely, and with deliberate and premeditated malice kills another, is guilty of murder in the first degree.

"Murder in the second degree, which is defined as follows: Whoever purposely and maliciously, but without deliberation or premeditation, kills another is guilty of murder in the second degree; and,

"Manslaughter is defined as follows: Whoever unlawfully kills another, in such manner and under such circumstances as not to constitute murder in the first degree, or murder in the second degree, is guilty of manslaughter.

"Purposely implies an act of the will. It means intentionally and not accidentally. * * *

"Malice is a necessary ingredient in murder both in the first, and murder in the second degree. Unless the defendant was actuated by malice, he cannot be said to have been guilty of murder in either degree. * * *

"If you find from the evidence the shooting was done, and done unlawfully, purposely and feloniously, before the defendant can be convicted of murder in the first degree, you must find beyond a reasonable doubt that the same was done with deliberate and premeditated malice, and that would require you to find that the defendant had formed the purpose to kill in her mind; that, having so formed such purpose, the same was by her deliberated upon and premeditated before the act of shooting was done. * * *

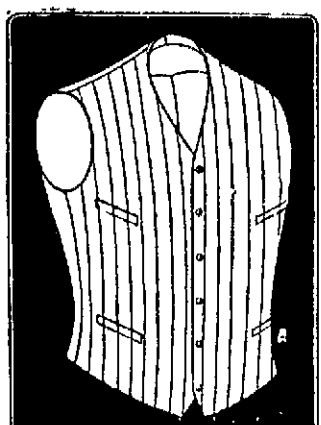

"If the defendant actually formed the purpose maliciously to kill and deliberated and premeditated upon it, before she performed the act, she is guilty of murder in the first degree, however short the time may have been between the purpose and its execution. It is not the time of deliberation that is requisite. * * *

"But this deliberation and premeditation does not mean a sudden rash conception of an enraged mind. * * *

"Therefore, before deliberation, and time was there before the shooting, depends upon the facts and circumstances in this case. If the defendant did not deliberate before the shooting she is not guilty of murder in the first degree.

"The distinctive difference between murder in the first degree and murder in the second degree is that the first is murder with deliberate and premeditated malice, and the second is murder without deliberate and premeditated malice.

"Fourth. You may find the defendant not guilty of murder in the first degree, and not guilty of murder in the second degree, and not guilty of manslaughter, assault and battery, and assault. (Continued on Page 11.)

INDICTMENTS FOR GRAFT.

Milwaukee, Wis., Dec. 19.—Forty indictments for graft returned by the grand jury last year may be invalidated by a sensational discovery. It is found that one man was drawn on the grand jury while another one served, a similarity of names causing the mistake. Five men indicted by this body have either been convicted or pleaded guilty. It is said that steps will be taken to secure the release of Michael Gunn, former building inspector, now serving a term in the house of correction and the remission of the fines of the others.

INSURRECTION SPREADS.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 19.—The latest advices from the Baltic provinces today show that the insurrection is still spreading and extends over practically the entire district. Advices from Lennwarden, South Livonia, say official reports that Riga is orderly is regarded as misleading as they are made in the face of ample advices as to the extent of excesses, incendiarism and violence prevailing there. The situation is undoubtedly still worse in the interior as the peasants have been rendered desperate on account of the famine.

GIVEN NEW TRIAL

The State of Ohio vs. Samuel Kerr was tried at this term of court upon an indictment for assault and battery. The defendant claims he whipped Johnson, the prosecuting witness, for insulting his wife. When the case was on trial Judge Coyner directed the jury to render a verdict of guilty. The jury under this instruction rendered a verdict of guilty. A motion for a new trial was filed by Hunter & Hunter, attorneys for the defendant on account of the judge not permitting them to argue the case to the jury and on account of directing the verdict of guilty. This motion came on for hearing Tuesday afternoon and on account of the above reasons the verdict of guilty was set aside, at the costs of the state, and new trial granted. Fitzgibbon, prosecuting attorney. Hunter & Hunter for defendant.

need not be of a deliberate and premeditated character. If the purpose to kill appeared and existed for the first time in the prisoner's mind in the act of killing, the killing was only murder in the second degree. If the intention to kill was formed and executed in and upon a sudden transport of passion, arising by provocation, but the provocation was not sufficient in law to reduce the killing from murder to manslaughter, it would only be murder in the second degree.

"To constitute either murder in the first or second degree the act must have been done maliciously. Malice has been defined as the dictate of a wicked, depraved and malignant heart."

"The court here defined malice and its bearing upon the case."

"If you should find the defendant not guilty of murder in the first degree, or murder in the second degree, you may then determine whether or not she is guilty of manslaughter. That is, of the unlawful killing of Hammond without malice, deliberation and premeditation. If the act which caused the death of John Hammond was committed in the heat of sudden passion caused by a provocation, and yet the provocation may be serious enough to deprive the intentional killing of its malicious character, so that it is neither murder on the one hand, nor justifiable on the other."

"If you find that the defendant killed Hammond intentionally the inference of malice follows. This inference may be rebutted by it appearing from the evidence that the killing was done in the heat of sudden passion and because of this passion."

"You are the sole judges of the credibility of the witnesses, and the weight which should attach to the testimony. Every witness is presumed to be truthful until the contrary is proved. And you should accept the testimony of every witness which is not improbable, and which is not discredited, impeached or contradicted in some of the methods which the law provides. Perjury should not be imputed to any witness unless there is a necessity for doing it."

"You should endeavor to reconcile the testimony and harmonize it if you can. But where there is irreconcilable conflict between witnesses and between testimony, it is your duty to fearlessly decide for yourselves which witnesses and what portion of the testimony you will believe. It is your privilege to believe all that the witness has testified to, or any part of the witnesses' testimony, or to disbelieve all of the witnesses' testimony."

"* * * You should consider the manner and bearing of the witness while on the witness stand. If any witness showed a zeal in stating facts unfavorable to one side and reluctance to disclose facts which benefit the other side the jury may discredit the witness. The witnesses who testify in a candid, frank, straightforward way, as witnesses should, invite confidence and credence."

"What I have said regarding the testimony and credibility of witnesses is stated to aid you, but not to control you, in determining the credibility of the witnesses and weight of evidence. These rules, together with any of the ordinary tests which go to make up the value of a witness' statements in the minds of the jurors, will assist you in reaching a conclusion regarding the truth in this case."

"The State has introduced, and relies upon, certain alleged admissions or confessions of the defendant of her participation in the commission of the crime. The State claims that those admissions or confessions were made by the defendant, and were made voluntarily; while the defendant desires that any such admissions or confessions were made at all, and says that if they were made, they were induced by promises of temporal benefit, or advantage."

"If you find that these admissions or confessions were made and that they were voluntarily made, then it is proper for you to consider them as bearing upon the question of the guilt of the defendant."

"If you find such admissions or confessions were made, then the burden is upon the defendant to satisfy you, by a preponderance of the evidence, that they were induced by promises of temporary benefit or advantage. If she has so satisfied you, you will, in your deliberations, discard any admission or confessions which she may have made."

"Now, the defendant in this case, has taken the witness stand in her own behalf, and that she had a right to do; and it is your duty and your privilege, to give her testimony such weight as, in your opinion, it is reasonably entitled."

"As a rule, hearsay evidence is not admissible, but the admission in evidence of dying declarations is an exception to the rule; but these declarations are only admissible when they are uttered under a fixed belief that death is impending and is certain to follow, and made by the declarant in the absence of all hopes of recovery, and that in a short time those immortal and spiritual elements which inhabit his body will forsake it, to encounter the dread possibilities of the unknown and supernatural world beyond the grave."

"If you find from the evidence that the defendant, Hammond, made accusatory declarations concerning this defendant, connecting her with the shooting, the result of which, it is claimed by the State, the decedent came to his death, you will then consider whether, at the time the decedent made the declaration, he believed that his death was impending and certain; and if you find that he did so believe, then you will give such declarations such weight as, in your best judgment, they are entitled to."

"But if you should find that at the time said declarations were made, if you find they were made, that the decedent did not believe that his death was impending and certain, and that he was without hope of recovery, then, and in that event, you will not consider those declarations at all."

Where the killing has been in self-defense, it is not unlawful, but innocent and justifiable, and the accused must be acquitted."

To render a homicide justifiable as having been done in self-defense, there must be shown:

1. A reasonable ground for apprehension of design, on the part of the person killed, to commit a felony, or to commit some great personal injury.

2. Imminent danger of such apprehended design being accomplished."

The court here told of the recent legislative enactment providing for punishment in first degree murder cases, first, by death or second life imprisonment where mercy is recommended. The judge then referred to the importance of each juror's duty, asking each to give the case careful consideration and deliberate judgment.

JACK CARRIG

Of Utica, N. Y., Wants To Meet Any 140-Pound Boxer In the State.

Jack Carrig, an eastern boxer of some considerable note, blew into town Monday and offered to post $100 on a bout with any 140-pound boxer in the state. He prefers to meet either Gus or Eugene Bezenah, of Cincinnati. Carrig left at once for Nelsonville where he expected to box on Monday night.

A five-round glove contest has been arranged with "Kid" Thompson, the St. Louis boxer, for next Friday night at the West End club on Union street. Thompson is a molder by trade and is working at the Wehrle foundry in this city. Carrig comes from Utica, N. Y.

PRICE OF STOGIES GOES UP SOON

THE MANUFACTURERS ADVISE
HEAVY PURCHASES BY LOCAL DEALERS.

Reason for Increase in Price is Scarcity of Tobacco—Shortage in the Crop.

After the first of January, lovers of the weed will be compelled to pay more for the stogies they smoke, according to advices received by Newark manufacturers. The four for a nickel stogies will probably sell at three for five cents and the three for five cent stogies will sell at two for five cents. This increase in the price is said by Newark manufacturers to have been caused by the unprecedented scarcity of the raw material. Tobacco of all kinds is very scarce, and it is said that manufacturers who have not laid in a good supply of tobacco will almost be compelled to quit business. Certain grades of good stogie tobacco have advanced in price over 10 per cent, and prices will have to go up. Dealers who can lay in a big stock of stogies now will save money.

Mt. Vernon, Dec. 19—In the case of Bebout vs. the Homer Natural Gas company a decision was handed down by the court in favor of the plaintiff, showing that the defendant had violated a contract.

TO THE PEOPLE OF NEWARK, OHIO

I endeavored in a former statement to make it clear that The Newark (O.) Water Company was willing to sell its plant to the city through an appraisal as per the terms of the original contract, which is the only way provided to dispose of the property to the city.

My proposition was specific, that if such appraisal was made and a price was agreed upon by the proceeding, the city should not be compelled to take the plant at such price.

I renew the proposition now, furthermore, if the city will undertake the appraisal and NO agreement be reached the Water Company will agree:

1. That the hydrant rental contract will be extended at the option of the city as long as is necessary to complete a municipal plant.
2. The city will be secured against any liability, either to take the property or to pay any costs, attorney fees or expenses on account of any litigation arising out of the appraisal or sale.

The Water Company claims and maintains that the city by making the purchase, can secure a complete plant in every respect, with adequate fire protection in every part of the city, at a saving of approximately $200,000 in the cost of construction and eliminate competition, also that the city will avoid the tearing up of many miles of paved streets, and the danger of sickness, and possible epidemic of diseases liable to follow the digging up of large areas of old streets and will receive the income from the 2500 patrons of The Newark (O.) Water Company.

But the Water Company takes this opportunity to state that if the city officials reject this proposition, and refuse to purchase the property, the Water Company will continue to furnish filtered water to its customers, at a price that will retain their patronage.

very respectfully submitted,
NEWARK (O.) WATER CO.

A Norwegian writes that the genuine old form of the name of the new king of the country is Hakon. The name is made up of two roots, ha, the root of har, high, and kon or konn, of the kin, family or race. Thus Hakon means the "high one of the kin." The modern Norwegian spelling is Haakon. The "aa" sounds like "aw" in hawk and the "on" like the English word on. The accent is on the first syllable.

FRIENDS

For Years the Two Old Postmasters Died at the Same Hour in Adjacent Towns.

Findlay, O., Dec. 19—Sylvester Davis, postmaster at Mt. Corey, dropped dead from heart disease while distributing mail at his office. He was 65 years of age and a veteran of the Civil war. He left a wife and five children.

About the same time in the little village of Arcadia, H. H. Nye, the postmaster, died from stomach trouble. Mr. Nye was 70 years of age and had been postmaster of the village for five years. He leaves a wife and one child.

The two postmasters had been old time friends.

They will reside in Columbus.—Columbus Dispatch.

Deafness Cannot be Cured.

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional treatment. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this is inflamed, you have a running ear or some other form of discharging ear, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. True cure out of ten cases caused by catarrh, as it is called, but an inflammation of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. We will cure you, if you have lost your hearing, by our new method. It is called the Catarrh Cure, and for circulars, free, write to J. C. HENRY & CO., Toledo, O. Sold by Druggists. The Family Pills are the best.

Attorney General Wade H. Ellis made a show of going after trusts when the campaign was in progress, but now that the campaign is over Ellis appears not to be anxious to establish a record as a smasher of combines.

New York state has authorized an expenditure of fifty millions of dollars on good roads. It's one thing to authorize an expenditure and quite another thing to spend the money, as people have learned in these days of exposures. But then New York means well and it is hoped the state will have some good roads to show for the appropriation. Despite his announcement in Cincinnati at the close of the polls on election day last month that he would thereafter be out of politics, George B. Cox is getting his political machine ready for further work. The influence of the Cox machine will be felt in the next political fight in Hamilton county, and the people will have another battle with the boss.

The deficit in the postoffice department for the last fiscal year ending June 30 last was over fourteen and a half million. A goodly portion of the deficit was piled up by carrying campaign matter for congressmen under the franking privilege, quite as much of an abuse as shown some years ago when a New York congressman franked his laundry home.

The Columbus Dispatch says: "There are issues in Ohio today on which a number of brainy and honorable legislators might easily ride to fame and higher honors." It has been only a little over a month since the machine Republican papers backed Chairman Dick in his claim that there were no issues in Ohio save the holy tariff and the support of President Roosevelt's administration.

The Cuyahoga county delegation in the legislature soon to assemble will vote unanimously for the appointment of a committee to investigate affairs down in Cincinnati and the political leaders there who have run affairs for some years. Cincinnati's boss and the Republican leadership there and in the state associated with him in controlling the affairs of the Queen City and of the state will get no more than they deserve when they get a searching investigation.

A dispatch from Milwaukee states that the leather men are stirred up over the manipulation of the hide market by the packing trust and are demanding relief in the shape of a removal of the duty on hides. It appears that the leather men are getting around to the Democratic way of thinking and dealing with the trusts which corner the markets at home and sell in foreign markets for less money than charged here for their products. There are a great many Republicans and Republican papers that demand that the Democratic way be tried as a measure of relief from trust extortion, but protected interests and stand-pat statesmen are in the way of anything being accomplished.

The Cleveland Leader, which did all in its power to support the Republican machine in the late campaign, is now out strongly in favor of civil service reform in Ohio. It says: "The time has come for civil service reform in Ohio."

service reform in Ohio. The spoils system is outgrown. It injures the reputation of the state and increases the cost of public business. The state pays more for less efficient service because of its adherence to the old evil way of dealing with state officials as if they were the loot of battle." And so the Leader again prints words to condemn what it said in the campaign. It then insisted that under the Republican administration there had been economy and the best management of affairs, notwithstanding the record of its party for multiplying positions to pay off political debts at the expense of the people of the state.

DAY'S BUSINESS IN COURT HOUSE

MRS. E. N. VANATTA HAS FILED SUIT IN PROBATE FOR DIVORCE.

Charles Horn in Application for a Divorce Makes Sensational Allegations—Other Cases.

Mrs. Mary M. Vanatta has just commenced suit in the Probate court for divorce from her husband, Edward N. Vanatta, a well known Baltimore & Ohio telegrapher of this city. Mrs. Vanatta says that she was married to Edward N. Vanatta in Cincinnati on April 7, 1892, and that one child, Charlotta Vanatta, now 13 years of age, was born of the marriage. Mrs. Vanatta says that her husband's treatment of her in his every day life was cold and unfeeling; that he was unsober and ostracized himself from her, and made it a daily habit of sulking the entire evening, when he came home from work, and say nothing to her, merely answering her when she spoke to him. Plaintiff also charges her husband with extreme cruelty in charging her with having been unfaithful to him, which charges she alleges are untrue. The plaintiff asks for a divorce and custody and control of the child, Charlotta Vanatta, and that she be decreed reasonable alimony pending the hearing, and permanent alimony upon the final hearing. S. L. James, attorney for the plaintiff.

Some time ago Mr. Vanatta filed a suit for divorce against his wife alleging infidelity but later the petition was withdrawn.

Charles Horn's Petition.
Charles Horn in the Probate court has commenced suit for divorce from his wife, Annie Horn. Plaintiff says he was married to the defendant December 4, 1895. No children were born of the marriage and the defendant is charged with gross neglect of duty and cruelty. He says his wife refused to look after and care for his three children (by a former wife), refusing to wash, keep clean, change their clothing, refusing to look after them at bed time, allowing them to lie down and go to sleep any place. He also charges his wife with beating and cursing the children, swearing she would kill them if they told their father. She is also charged with infidelity. S. L. James, attorney for the plaintiff.

Pleaded Guilty to Assault.
State of Ohio vs. Giuseppe Pontrelli, plea of guilty of assault; fined $10 and costs. The defendant had been indicted, tried and convicted for shooting with intent to wound an employee of the Wehrle works, and was sentenced to the Ohio State Reformatory. In the Circuit court the petition in error was sustained on motion, and consent of the prosecuting attorney. The defendant pleaded guilty to assault Tuesday.

Suit for Damages.
In the case of Frank H. Chism vs. the Buckeye Lake Traction company and others for $1,999 damages sustained by reason of injuries received at Hebron, the plaintiff, for reply to the answer of the National Railway Construction company, to its fourth amended petition, says:

That the National Railway Construction company were not, nor was either of them, a corporation incorporated under the laws of Ohio; that neither of them ever complied with the laws of Ohio in order to do or transact business or make any contract in Ohio, nor has either of them ever obtained from the Secretary of State, or other officers thereof, any certificate authorizing either of the corporations to transact or do business in Ohio; that neither of the corporations ever paid any tax or any sum of money to Ohio for the privilege of doing business in Ohio, and that by reason thereof, any contract made by the Columbus, Buckeye Lake and Newark Traction company with either of the corporations for the construction of the road, did not relieve the Columbus, Buckeye Lake and Newark Traction company from liability for the injuries received by the plaintiff while engaged in the construction of the railroad upon its right of way under its franchise received by it from the State of Ohio. Plaintiff prays judgment as asked for in this fourth amended petition.

Plaintiff has also filed his reply to the answer of the Columbus, Buckeye Lake and Newark Traction company to the fourth amended petition, which is substantially the same as the above. Hunter & Hunter and Flory & Flory, attorneys for the plaintiff.

LIQUOR BILL

Of New York City Bigger Than Income from Tariff—Million Dollars Daily.

New York, Dec. 19.—The World publishes the following:
New York spends $1,000,000 a day for drink, according to Rev. Madison C. Peters, of Epiphany Baptist church. He gave his congregation some figures on the subject:
New York's annual liquor bill, $365,000,000.
This is:
More than the income from the tariff.
Four times the annual gold output.
Six times the yearly silver product.
One-third the value of all coal mined in a year.
In some sections of New York there is one saloon to every 30 families.
The money spent here in 10 years for liquor would buy every workingman a home in the suburbs.
New York's annual drink bill would buy:
73,000,000 barrels of flour.
730,000 wagon loads of wheat.
It would take 50 persons a year to count the money in $1 notes.
The money would cover 10,000 acres of ground.

SUPREME COURT

Practically Says That the Old Fellows Must Retire at the End of Terms.

Columbus, Dec. 19.—The Supreme court today refused to entertain the question as to whether Gov. Herrick, the old legislature and old public officials are to be beneficiaries of the one year extension of term incident to the new constitutional amendment. The court's action put an end to the discussion. It is up to the old fellows to retire gracefully at the expiration of the terms for which they were elected.

AN ENTERTAINMENT

Will be Given at the Children's Home on Friday Night and a Big Dinner Monday.

Elaborate preparations are being made for the annual Christmas celebration at the Children's home east of the city. The present plans provide for an excellent entertainment in which every child in the home will take some active part. This will be given on Friday night. Next Monday a big Christmas dinner will be given to the children at the home.

There are now 55 children in the home, whose ages range from 3 to 14 years. The entertainment Friday night will include the distribution of gifts from a large Christmas tree. Donations are being received by Superintendent Kreig for this annual festival occasion.

CHANGES MADE IN THE SALARIES

BID OF FRANKLIN NATIONAL BANK FOR BONDS IS ACCEPTED.

A Short Business Session of the City Council Was Held on Monday Evening.

A short session of the City Council was held Monday night, this being the last regular meeting of the present body. All members except Councilman Conrad were present and but little business was transacted. A petition followed by an ordinance provided for the extension of East Locust street from Front street to the North Fork of the Licking river. As was announced several days ago, the Newmark, Martinsburg and Mt. Vernon traction company submitted their bid for a franchise in the city, offering a five cent fare within the city limits.

In accordance with the communication received from the auditor of state several weeks ago, in which councils were instructed that if any change in the salaries of city officials was contemplated, it must be made, according to the municipal code, before the new officials took their respective offices, an ordinance was introduced making several changes in the salaries.

The salary of the treasurer was decreased by the ordinance from $400 to $200 a year. The members of the board of public safety will receive $150 per year instead of $300 as formerly. The salary of the clerk of the public safety board was increased from $50 to $100 per year. The clerk of the council will receive $600 per year beginning the first of January, instead of $50. The salary of the sergeant-at-arms of the council was increased from $75 to $100 per year. The salaries of other officials will remain as fixed by a former ordinance.

City Auditor Maurath submitted a report containing the tabulation of votes cast in the special election on the $200,000 bond issue. A report from the finance committee instructed the auditor to accept the bid of the Franklin National Bank for the $16,000 refunding bond and to appropriate the money realized from the sale of the bonds, in liquidating that debt.

Mr. Maurath as clerk of the council, tendered his resignation to the council and the same was accepted.

HERE'S WHAT MAY BEFALL US IN '06

PROPHET SPANGLER PREDICTS ALL SORTS OF DIRE DISASTERS.

Dissolution of Russia, Overthrow of Turkey, Big Storms and Several Assassinations.

New York, Dec. 19.—Here are Spangler's prophecies for 1906:
The dissolution of Russia.
The overthrow of Turkey.
The assassination of the Czar of Russia.
The assassination of the Sultan of Turkey.
The prevention of three wars by President Roosevelt.
A protracted race war in the South.
Destructive spring floods in the United States.
A destructive eruption of Mont Pelée and Popocatepetl.
Volcanic eruptions in all parts of the world.
The eruption of many volcanoes now supposed to be extinct.
Great loss of life at sea by storms.
Destruction of two Western cities by cyclones.
Earthquakes in all parts of the world.
Destructive earthquakes in California and the Philippines.
Rebellion in Spain.
Great disturbances all over Europe.
Spangler says further that the summer of 1906 will be hot and sultry throughout the temperate zone, with extensive death rate.
That Christ will make his spirit felt among the peoples of the United States and England, in which countries there are to be fervent religious and potent political movements which are to overcome in a great degree the present spirit of graft and commercialism.
That the United States will continue as a world power and the leader of other nations.
That Pennsylvania is to have an administration of the people and that discoveries of corruption will be discovered which will drive some of the guilty to suicide.
That God will wreak terrible vengeance upon the Russians for the massacre of the Jews.
The King company wishes you a Merry Christmas. 18-6t

Bowser Tries Poetry Again

He Brings His Muse to the Front Once More and Writes an Ode to the Cocktail.

FINDS IT A HARD TASK
Gets Disgusted and Seeks Out the Druggist For Advice—His Finish Is Spectacular.

(Copyright, 1905, by McClure, Phillips & Co.)

WHILE Mr. Bowser had come home in perfect good temper, Mrs. Bowser was not long in making the discovery that he had something on his mind. He was distant and absent-minded and had a faraway look in his eyes, and at the dinner table he poured vinegar instead of milk into his tea and did not seem to notice the difference. She had no explanations to ask until their return to the sitting room. Then she queried:

"Is your rheumatism bothering you more than usual this evening?"

He looked at her for a long time without replying and then exclaimed:

"By thunder, but I wish I had a wife who could understand and sympathize with my feelings!"

"I think you have. I think I understand you perfectly, and I don't think you can charge me with a lack of sympathy. What is it that is bothering you?"

"But you always pitch into me when I get a new idea," he protested.

"If the idea seems a sensible one I encourage it. You must admit that you get some queer notions into your head now and then."

"Well, the matter is just this: The Old Boys' Literary and Cocktail society has asked me to write an ode and read it at the annual meeting in January. I know that I can do it with a little help, but I also know that you will be down on the matter from the start. You are ready now to get off one of those mean little flings of yours."

"No, I am not," replied Mrs. Bowser after doing some rapid thinking. "You once tried an ode to something or other and did not make much of a success of it, but that is no reason why you shouldn't try again. So far as helping you, I shall be only too glad to do so."

"But you'll be critical and make me mad."

"If you want an honest opinion from me I shall have to tell you what I think. If you don't like my way you are not bound to follow it. Where does the cocktail come in in a literary society?"

"Why, the idea is to preserve the cocktail in sentiment and song. It was the foundation of Greek poetry, you know."

"Indeed, but I never heard of that. Is your ode to be on the cocktail?"

"Yes."

"Well, go ahead with it. I think you had best go into the library and write it verse by verse or section by section."

Mr. Bowser didn't knock over chairs in his haste to get by himself and begin that ode. He moved away slowly and with a proper appreciation of the difficulties and dangers before him, and when he at last got seated before the library table he gave the subject further consideration—that is, he wondered what was the difference between an ode, an idyl, a sonnet, a poem and a blank verse. Not being able to come to a conclusion in the course of ten minutes, he picked up his pen and began:

Oh, cocktail of the long, long past,
With reverence do I bow to thee!
Undimmed thy fame by centuries' lapse.

Thy story—

There Mr. Bowser paused. He had lifted the big end of the saw log and strained his back.

"What is it?" asked Mrs. Bowser as she came to the door and found him staring up at the ceiling and his bald pate covered with moisture.

"I can't finish this line," he replied as he handed her the paper.

"Well, dear, I think you have started off rather high flown. If you would come down a little from that standard you would find it easier."

"Is it an ode?"

"Yes, as far as you have gone, but an ode needn't necessarily be way up in 'G'. Don't be discouraged, but try again."

Mr. Bowser got up and rubbed his scalp and walked up and down for ten minutes and then suddenly seated himself and dashed off the following:

The Greeks they gave us the cocktail
To live in story and song.
And we'll never forget the cocktail, you bet.
With which we can find nothing wrong.

"I think I've got a start on it—I think I have," he said as he went out to Mrs. Bowser. "Just listen to this."

Mrs. Bowser listened, and when the verse had been read she said:

"I don't want to discourage you, but that is not an ode. It is what you might call a jingle."

"What! Call that a jingle?"

"Well, it's not an ode. Now, don't get vexed with me. What they asked you to write was an ode. Here is a volume of poetry with fifty different odes in it, and you can see how they go."

Mr. Bowser would have been rather glad of a row just then, as he was beginning to doubt his poetic talents, but as Mrs. Bowser gave him no excuse he retired to the library and set his jaw and started anew. After reading three or four of the odes he thought he saw how the old thing worked and made the following grab for it:

Of Athens' greatness there was ne'er a doubt;
The fame of Greece the whole world acknowledged.
For song, for story, for the sculptor's art, for philosophy and erudition
And for several
Other things Greece was at the top of the heap.

"We can't be greater than we are," said man to man. "Let us rest content." But there was a fellow named Aristotle, who smiled to himself.

"We are great, but we will be greater!" He whispered, and thereupon he invented the cocktail.

Tail and made the whole world bend the knee anew.

"Well?" asked Mrs. Bowser as he came out to her with flashing eyes and flushed face.

He read his effusion and laid it before her. She wanted to laugh and to cry; she wanted to criticize and encourage. While she was wondering what she should do, Mr. Bowser picked up the paper and started down the hall.

"Are you going out, dear?" she asked.

"Madam, I am going out!" he replied in icy tones.

He put on his hat and overcoat and passed out into the night, and five minutes later he entered the store of his family druggist.

"Hello, Bowser! What's up?" was asked of him.

"You know an ode when you see one, don't you?"

"I rather reckon."

"Well, read this. I want to know whether it's an ode or a jingle and whether it's all rot or a mighty good thing."

"I'll put you up something," said the druggist after reading the lines.

"What for?"

"For that tired feeling. Take a table-spoonful in water three times a day."

Mr. Bowser went white to the lips as he backed out of the store. For a moment he thought of smashing the windows and applying the torch and murdering the druggist, but fortunately for him two men with arms locked came around the corner singing that they were jolly good fellows. Next moment the poet was upon them and among them and all over them, and the sky of night was rent with awful sounds of conflict.

Jefford watched the big farm wagon rattle down the road and turned disconsolately to his charge. It was pretty hard that he should be cut out of the last picnic of the season just because Nellie Carter's married sister chose to declare that her Bobby's life was too precious to be jeopardized by wandering into the woods, where as likely as not poison ivy lurked and where, at the very least, there was the chance that he would climb a tree when some one's back was turned and fall through the breaking of a rotten branch.

Bobby Germaine had been every one's cross that summer. Day after day some excursion had been proposed and some one had had to stay at home with Bobby. Jefford often wondered why his mother did not remain behind with her precious offspring, but Mrs. Germaine always had been one of the first to accept, and for the sake of her pretty sister some one had volunteered to remain behind with the six-year-old. Usually it had been Turner or Bascom, for they had been rivals for Nellie Carter's affections ever since the season had opened.

"MR. TURNER NEVER SPANKED ME," SOBBED TOMMY.

Jefford had made good headway in attracting Nellie's attention, but this was the first time he had sought to gain her favor by remaining at home with Bobby, and he would not have been left out of the party this time had it not been that Nellie herself had made the request.

It was piazza gossip that Bobby was a sort of test as to the fitness of Nellie's suitors, and that the masterful Mrs. Germaine would throw the balance of her favor to the fortunate man who had most successfully filled the role of day nurse to her young hopeful.

Jefford loved Nellie sincerely, but he had avoided these tete-a-tetes with Bobby religiously. Now he watched the rest of the summer party down the road and lifted his eyes just in time to behold Bobby falling into the tiny fountain on the lawn. He had to form his small body into an almost complete circle to accomplish this result, but he was successful and a moment later was dragged forth, wet and wailing, to be sent upstairs to his nurse to be dried out.

Twenty minutes later he was on the lawn in a new linen suit, and Jefford raced across the grass just in time to prevent him from cutting his hands on the mower.

Jefford went back to his book, and Bobby crossed the road to the pasture beyond, whence there presently arose agonized cries, and Jefford arrived in time to haul Bobby over the fence before his change of venue was assisted by a goat. For a moment there was a decided inclination to lay the youngster across his knee, but there came the realization that he was his aunt's nephew, and beyond a mild rebuke there were no developments.

Through the morning Bobby managed to get into half a dozen scrapes, from which he was rescued by his guardian before serious complications arose, and only the ring of the dinner bell saved him from seeking to interview the bull in the north pasture.

The meal was comparatively peaceful, for the nurse-girl was in attendance to check any demonstration, but she conveniently vanished after the meal, and Jefford sat upon the porch with his after dinner cigar and wondered how it was that Turner and Bascom had been able to get through an entire day without committing murder.

Half a dozen times through the morning he had been moved to take decided action and had been restrained therefrom only by the thought of what Nellie would say, but when Bobby dug up from somewhere the remnants of his Fourth of July stock of firecrackers and proceeded to set them off in the henhouse, where a dozen hens were on their nests, Jefford's patience gave way.

With a firm grasp upon the offender's collar, he led him toward the porch, while Bobby, with streaming eyes, developed an unexpected fertility of invention in explaining what he would say to his mother and his aunt upon their return.

What he could say to Mrs. Germaine was a matter of complete indifference to Jefford, and for the moment he was not to be moved even by the use of Nellie's name. On the piazza there was a short scuffle, in which Bobby held his own remarkably well, and thereafter the sound of a voice raised in anguish and the smack of a broad palm upon well stretched cloth.

"Mr. Turner never spanked me," sobbed Bobby. "Aunt Nell won't like you when I tell her how cruel you was to me."

"I know it," was Jefford's amiable response, "but for your soul's salvation you simply had to have that spanking, and you'll get another if I catch you up to any of your tricks again."

That afternoon Peace sat on the front piazza with Bobby, and for the first time since his arrival on the farm the live stock spent a quiet afternoon.

Jefford enjoyed the quiet as much as they did, but it was with a flushed face that he met the party on its return and received Mrs. Germaine's compliments upon the excellent care he had taken of the boy.

"I hope he did not give you any bother," she gushed. "Bobby is an angel, but he will be wayward at times."

"No," said Jefford quietly. "He was a little rough this morning, but we very soon came to an understanding, and we have had a delightful afternoon here on the piazza."

Turner and Bascom eyed Jefford with looks of unbelief, but Nellie's eyes snapped as she watched the pantomime. They were twinkling when, that evening, Jefford spoke simply of his love.

"I know that I am not worthy of you," he admitted, "but I love you, dear, and I want you for my very own."

"Jim," she said softly, "before I answer your question I want to ask one. What was that understanding you had with Bobby this afternoon?"

Jefford colored. "I don't think that is fair," he protested. "I took him in charge at your request."

"Mr. Bascom and Mr. Turner declared that they never had any trouble," she said irrelevantly. "I know that poor Mr. Turner spent one entire afternoon on his hands and knees playing horse to amuse Bobby."

"Would you like to see me capering about on all fours," he asked, "just to keep a spoiled child out of mischief?"

"Still," she reminded, "a man often may be judged by his attitude toward childish innocence."

He rose and faced her. "Nell," he said steadily, "if I had been in contact with childish innocence all the afternoon I would be all right, but when I am compelled to stand guard over a spoiled child and he almost sets fire to the henhouse and half kills the entire flock, there is just one thing that will meet the situation promptly, and that's a good old fashioned spanking. That was the understanding I had with Bobby, and it was effective."

"I asked you to stay behind with him on purpose," she went on. "I knew that the others had been kind to him and had used only words of kindness. Not one of them ever thought of spanking him—for my sake."

"Well," declared Jefford, "if that's your idea of a love test I am afraid I am out of it. I spanked him because he needed it, and I'm glad I did. I suppose I had better be getting on."

He had taken half a dozen steps when a hand was lightly laid upon his arm.

"Jim," said Nellie tenderly, "don't you suppose I realized what Bobby needed? I'm glad that you, at least, had the courage."

"Then Bobby was not your test?" he cried.

"Bobby was a test," she said, "but I was looking for a real man and not for a man who would let a child ride roughshod over him just because of an aunt. You are the man I want, dear."

Strange to say, Bobby approved the choice.

Why the Killing Party Did Not Take Place

A CERTAIN man now prominently identified with the state board of education began his career as a schoolteacher in the backwoods of New England. His pay was small, and sometimes he was compelled to find his own lodging and at the same time act in the capacity of cook. During such a period it was customary for the good people of the place to furnish him the necessities of life. There was one close-fisted farmer, however, who, though he had several children attending the school, had never done anything for the teacher's support.

One day the teacher noticed a son of this particular farmer on a road. Greeting him kindly, he encouraged the lad to speak.

"I say, Mr. —," broke in the boy, "do you like pork?"

Anticipating a donation from the old delinquent, the teacher responded: "Of course, Johnny. Why do you ask me that?"

"Oh, pa is going to have a killing pretty soon and wanted to know," replied the youngster.

Several days passed, and again the teacher met the little fellow under similar circumstances. Remembering the donation which had not as yet appeared, he said:

"Well, Johnny, how about the pork your pa was going to give me?"

"Oh," replied Johnny, "that pig got well!"—Philadelphia Ledger.

Sound Logic.

When Billy was three years old his mother bought him a pair of short duck pants. The first time they were washed, they shrank badly. Billy was fat, but his mother wedged him into the trousers—against his protest. Billy went out to play, but in a few minutes returned.

"Mamma," he said, "I can't wear these pants; they are too tight. Why, mamma, they are tighter than my skin."

"Oh, no, they're not, Billy," replied his mother. "Nothing could be tighter than your skin."

"Well, these pants are, because I can sit down in my skin, but I can't in these pants."—Lippincott's Magazine.

Undeniable.

A story that comes from Ireland relates to the custom among farmers there of depositing money in the bank in the joint names of husband and wife, so that when one dies the survivor can draw out the money without any legal formalities. To a farmer who recently made application for money deposited for himself and his wife the manager of the bank asked:

"Why, Pat, how can this be? It is not much more than a year since you came, with a similar application on the death of your wife."

"Well, your honor," was the reply, "I'm a bit lucky wid wumen."—Minneapolis Tribune.

CHARLES HOFHERR UNCONSCIOUS

FOUND IN THAT CONDITION IN HIS WAGON TUESDAY MORNING.

Doctors Say That He Will Recover if Patient Is Kept Quiet for a Time.

Charles Hofherr, the West Locust street baker, was found unconscious in his wagon on Wilson street about 7 o'clock Tuesday morning. Mr. Hofherr's horse stopped at the house of Frank Moon, 308 Wilson street, at the usual time, when a teamster who was coming behind Mr. Hofherr's wagon called to him to move on in order that he could pass. He received no answer and Mrs. Moon who had gone to the wagon, found Mr. Hofherr lying on the seat unconscious. Messrs. Frank Swartz and Michael Sachs who happened past at this time carried him into the house of Mr. Moon, where Doctors Wiyiarch and Barker were called. The doctors pronounced the case heart trouble, bordering on apoplexy of the stomach.

Mr. Hofherr was restored to consciousness upon the arrival of the doctors, and sedatives were administered. He has been resting comfortably during the day, but cannot be removed to his home until late Tuesday evening or Wednesday morning. The physicians in attendance state that he is out of danger if kept quiet for a time.

TWICE MARRIED,

Though Not Yet 17, the Beautiful Girl Files Her Second Suit For Divorce.

Jeffersonville, Ind. Dec. 19—Twice married and not yet 17, Mrs. Clara E. Clegg by her father, Edward Miner as her next friend, filed suit for divorce yesterday from Wm. Clegg, of this city. The complaint alleges that her husband was cruel, and prior to their separation in July of last year had a habit of remaining away at night. They were married November 24, 1903.

Mrs. Clegg is one of the prettiest young women in Clark county, her home being at Charlestown.

When a shade beyond 14 the girl was married in Jeffersonville to Chas. Deuser of Charlestown. There was some difficulty about the marriage, and before it was performed Deuser was arrested in Louisville at the instigation of Mr. Miner and returning to Jeffersonville married the girl in the presence of a large crowd. The wedding party returned to Louisville, and when the boat landed at the First street pier, Deuser said good-by to his wife. Two months after this she obtained a divorce and a week later married Clegg.

TWIN BROTHERS

Separated When Mere Babies in Cincinnati, Have Been Reunited by Efforts of a Congressman.

Dayton, O., Dec. 19—Through the efforts of Congressman Nevin, James Locke has just received a letter from his twin brother, Benjamin Locke, of Elk City, Kas. While inmates of the Hamilton county Children's Home, when six years old they were separated, and by an inaccuracy in recording the names and addresses of the persons who reared the lads, they were unable to locate each other.

James Locke often discussed politics with Congressman Nevin, and once told him of his absent brother, whom Nevin said he would find for him. While in Washington Colonel Nevin learned that Benjamin Locke was a pensioner, and he at once wrote to him. They have a sister, whose whereabouts they do not know.

PAROLED

By Governor Hanly in Order That the Convict May Visit His Dying Mother.

New Albany, Ind., Dec. 19—In order that he may attend his dying mother, William Fultz, an inmate of the Indiana Reformatory in Jeffersonville, has been granted a parole by Governor Hanly.

The young man was convicted at Auburn, Ind., of manslaughter and was sent to the reformatory for a term of from 2 to 14 years. His aged mother could not endure the shock of her son's downfall and she had been in declining health since the time of his conviction.

Little by little her health has failed until she is now in a dying condition, and the friends of the family have prevailed upon Governor Hanly to extend executive clemency so that the wayward boy can be with his mother during her last days on earth.

WED THREE TIMES

But Were Divorced Nor Did They Break the Laws Against Bigamy.

Sandusky, O., Dec. 19—Mrs. Mary Ann Rhodes of Huron, enjoys the unique distinction of having been married three times without having been widowed or divorced, and without violation of the statute prohibiting bigamy. Her husband, Valentine Rhodes, died a few months ago, and the story has leaked out during the settlement of his affairs.

Years ago this couple were married. In 1875 Mrs. Rhodes filed a petition for divorce but a reconciliation was effected, and some time in 1876 the suit was formally dismissed. Fearing that the record of the suit might in some way cloud their marriage the couple decided to remarry, and on June 20, 1876, took out a license. For nearly twenty years they neglected to have a ceremony performed under this license, but on March 13, 1896 they appeared before W. R. Tyler, a justice of the peace, and were remarried.

Again fear took hold of them. The 24 year old license did not look good after it had been used, and it was decided to get a new one and have still another ceremony. The last license was procured in 1898, and Justice Tyler again tied the knot. This time it was satisfactory to all concerned.

Coroner Begins the Work of Investigating Deaths in Lorain Fire

A MAN'S DELIBERATE SUICIDE

PLEAD GUILTY TO CHARGE OF BRIBERY AT WASHINGTON, C. H.

Salesman Found Dead in Hotel—New Hebrew College—Ticket Broker Indicted—State News.

Lorain, O., Dec. 19.—Coroner French began an investigation into the circumstances attending the death of Mrs. William Marsh, her two children and James Dwyer, whose bodies were found in the ruins of the Verbeck theater building. Mrs. Marsh was the wife of the stage manager of the theater and occupied apartments in the block. The coroner gave it as his opinion that there were enough suspicious circumstances connected with the fire to warrant the theory that murder had been committed and the place set on fire to cover up the crime. He says that the man he suspects of knowing something about the supposed crime has disappeared, and he is searching for him.

Deliberate Suicide.
Cincinnati, O., Dec. 19.—Summoning his wife and daughter to come down stairs into the barroom of his saloon, after singing a gay song, Hiram D. Edwards waited until his wife, Mrs. Lizzie Edwards, came, and then, taking a revolver from a drawer, exclaimed, "Now, look; see what a brave man can do!" Before any of the bystanders could interfere he raised the weapon to his left breast and fired one shot. The bullet passed through his heart and he fell back on the floor dead.

Want Methodist Conference.
Cincinnati, O., Dec. 19.—A committee to present a formal invitation to have the next general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church held in this city in May, 1908, was named at a mass meeting of Methodist clergy and laity here. In the original resolutions one of the reasons given in favor of meeting in Cincinnati was "that this city is confessedly a key situation in the mooted matter of organic union with the Methodist Episcopal church south."

Arson Charged.
Cleveland, O., Dec. 19.—Deputy State Fire Marshal Harry T. Brockman returned from Canton, O., where he investigated the incendiary fire which destroyed the meat market of Charles Renner. He says arrests will be made in a day or two. He exonerates Renner and his three employees. Brockman says the meat market owners have been engaging in a bitter war, and he attributes the burning of Renner's place to a rival in business.

Six Plead Guilty.
Washington, C. H., O., Dec. 19.—William R. Colap, William Dunn, Oscar Kelhofer, David Heigle, William Hooker and Bert Adamson appeared before Judge Dresback and pleaded guilty to charges of bribery in the recent local option election here, on which they were indicted some time ago. The pleas caused much surprise. Judge Dresback then fined each of them.

Chadwick Case.
Cleveland, O., Dec. 19.—District Attorney J. J. Sullivan went to Cincinnati in connection with the petition for a rehearing of the Chadwick case which was filed Saturday by Francis J. Wing, attorney for Mrs. Chadwick. Mr. Sullivan said that he had received no official notice of the filing of the appeal, and that he was going to Cincinnati to investigate "I will ask that the rehearing be immediate," said Mr. Sullivan. "This case has been dragged along too long now and we want it disposed of." Mrs. Chadwick is still at the county jail.

New Hebrew College.
Cincinnati, O., Dec. 19.—Land for the site of a new college to take the place of the various Hebrew colleges throughout the country was purchased in Clifton, a Cincinnati suburb. The site for the new union Hebrew college is close to the University of Cincinnati, on the hilltops to the north of the city. Work on the new grounds will be started immediately, and the buildings already planned will require an outlay of more than $200,000.

Ticket Broker Indicted.
Cleveland, O., Dec. 19.—It became known that two secret informants were returned against C. M. Christensen, a ticket broker. One of the indictments charges Christensen with

GEORGE E. WALDO,
Congressman from New York.

George E. Waldo was born in Brooklyn, N. Y., on January 11, 1851. He was educated in the common schools and at Cornell University. He studied law in the office of D. A. Hulitt and Oliver J. Wells, New York, and was admitted to the bar in 1876. From 1876 to the present time he has practiced law in New York, with the exception of six years spent in practice in Nebraska (1883-89). Mr. Waldo has held many high offices, and was a delegate to the Republican National Convention in 1900. He is a member of many of the commercial and social clubs of New York and Brooklyn, and is a thirty-second degree Mason. Mr. Waldo was married in 1896 to Miss Flora A. Henderson of Tallahassee, Fla., and has three children.

committing forgery and the other with circulating forged tickets. The indictment of Christensen is the result of the crusade against ticket scammers.

Killed in a Runaway.
Springfield, O., Dec. 19.—Bruce Harlow, lineman employed by the Home Light, Heat and Power company, was killed in a runaway accident. He was thrown from the company's wagon and the wheel ran over his head, crushing his skull. Harlow was showing the men how to drive.

Salesman Found Dead.
Sandusky, O., Dec. 19.—Max Wertheimer, a traveling salesman of Cincinnati, was found dead in a room at the Signe hotel. He came here about 10 days ago in search of a position. He left a letter which stated that there were a number of presents in his trunk for relatives.

Woman's Fatal Fall.
Wooster, O., Dec. 19.—Mrs. Elizabeth Pope, widely known as the head of the Pope seminary here, fell in her room and fractured her skull, causing death. She was born at Canton 83 years ago.

Wages Advanced.
Cleveland, O., Dec. 19.—The Cleveland Worsteds Mills company has voluntarily advanced the wages of its 1,500 employees 10 per cent. The company has plants in Cleveland and Ravenna, O.

Child Fatally Burned.
Columbus, O., Dec. 19.—Janet Bradbury, 5, is dead at the home of her parents, the result of injuries received while at play, her clothing catching fire from an open gas grate.

Boy Gets Three Years.
Dayton, O., Dec. 19.—Percy Hill, 29, was given three years in the workhouse for obtaining money under false pretenses. He got $2.75. Hill has been arrested a dozen times on the same charge. Advantage was taken of the habitual criminal law to keep him occupied for three years. It is the first time the sentence was ever imposed by the police court.

Boy Charged With Forgery.
Cincinnati, O., Dec. 19.—Arthur Wheeler, 16, of Dayton, O., is in the county jail on the charge of forgery. He is charged with appropriating the bank book of George F. Rich of Wyoming, whose family he was visiting, and with forging checks to draw out the amount to Rich's credit.

TO SUPREME COURT

Father and Three Sons Will Appeal Under Death Sentence.

Atlanta, Ga., Dec. 19.—Governor Terrell and Attorney General Hart have acknowledged service of citations which will carry the cases of J. G. Rawlins and his three sons to the supreme court of the United States. J. G. Rawlins and two sons, Milton and Jesse, are under sentence to be hanged next month for the murder of the Carter children at Vicksburg, Miss., while the third son, Leonard, has already been the victim of a life term for complicity in the same crime. The action will be to carry the execution of sentence until the case can be heard by the supreme court. The murders were the outgrowth of a feud between the Rawlins and Carter families.

Supreme court of the United States granted leave to the state of Kentucky to file a petition for a writ of mandamus in the case of Caleb Foxworth and made the rule returnable January 15.

IN GRASP OF INSURGENTS

Troops Unable to Restore Order in the Baltic Provinces.

RIGA REPORTED IN FLAMES

Doubt Exists as to Whether the Workmen Will Proclaim a General Strike. Railroad Men Discuss the Question at Moscow—Soldiers Defeated by Revolutionists.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 19.—There is doubt as to whether the proletariat organizations will risk proclaiming a general strike as their answer to the government's policy of repression. They are anxiously awaiting responses from the provinces, especially the decision of the railroad men, whose central committee is holding a prolonged session at Moscow. The strongest argument of the leaders against delay is that the government will employ the time before Jan. 22 in breaking up the organizations throughout the country, leaving the revolution in a stranded condition.

The insurgents of Livonia, according to authoritative news, derailed on Dec. 14 last, near Stockmans, a military train which was carrying the reinforcements from Wilna to Riga. They then attacked the survivors of the wreck. The general commanding at Wilna telegraphs that he is unable to send assistance, as the tracks is destroyed on both sides. It is feared the casualties are heavy.

A dispatch from Mitau, Courland, says: The troops, in order to avoid annihilation at the hands of the insurgents, have been forced to abandon the country districts and to concentrate at Riga, Mitau and Libau, where they actually are standing on the defensive, unable to make head against the insurgents. Several detachments have been defeated. The garrison of Tukum, consisting of a squadron of dragoons and a company of infantry, not being able to depart in time, was set upon at night and lost its commander, Lieutenant Colonel Mueller, and 30 men. The insurgents, evading the sentinels, penetrated the town and laid wire entanglements in front of the houses in which the wearied soldiers were quartered. They then set fire to the houses, and the troops, rushing out, were shot down from the roofs or cut up in the narrow streets. The soldiers retreated in confusion, leaving their dead. The latter were horribly mutilated by the insurgents. The workmen's council, under the noses of police, succeeded in printing a hundred thousand copies of its paper, announcing that the government has declared a civil war on the proletariat and saying that the challenge must be accepted. In its appeal to the people the council declares this is the government's last fight; that the throne of the Romanoffs is tottering, and that another blow will cause it to fall. The council adds: "While the government at St. Petersburg is falling, its own regiments are rising against it, and at Riga a republic has already been proclaimed. A few regiments may still be faithful, but the army as a whole is on our side. If the government was to fight, it shall have it."

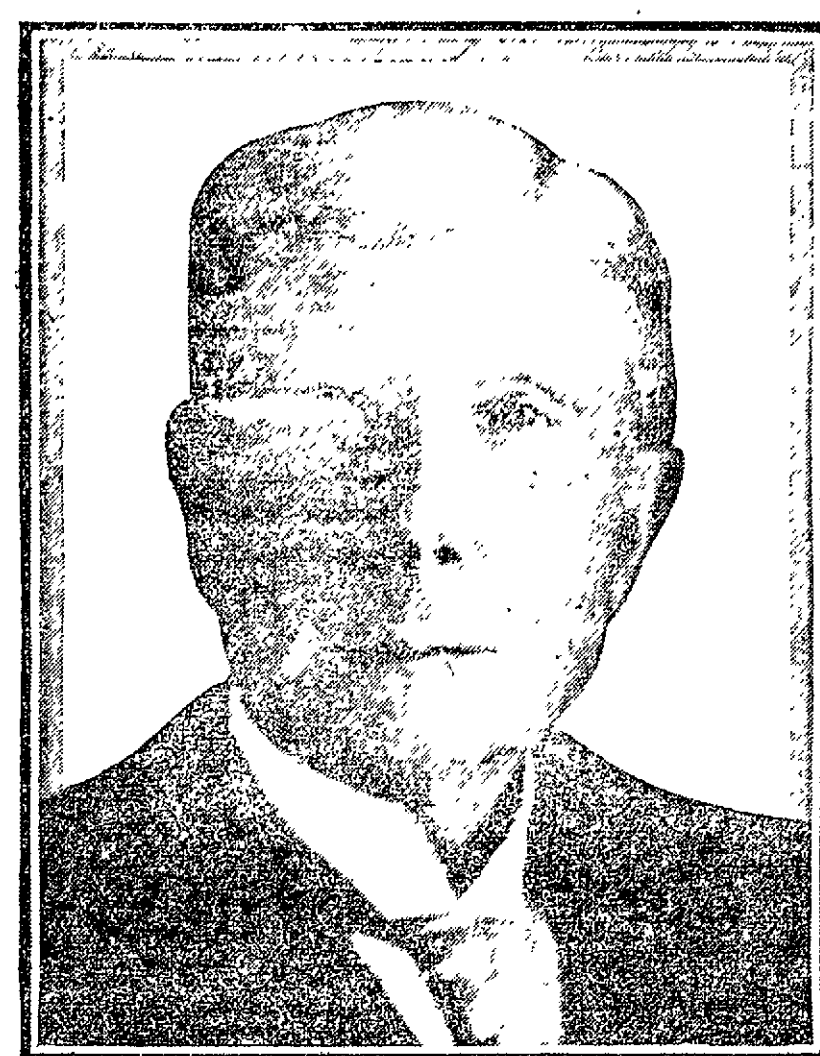

Telegrams received here say that the troops returning to Russia over the Trans-Siberian railway are greatly enraged at the delays they are subjected to and are wrecking the railroad stations and other buildings and indulging in further excesses wherever they are halted.

Riga in Flames.
Berlin, Dec. 19.—A dispatch to the Lokal Anzeiger from Eydkuhnen says the conductor of a train from St. Petersburg asserts the troops at Riga have joined in the revolt and the town is being shelled and is burning. Between St. Petersburg and Wirballen the flames, according to the conductor, could be seen from several places, and were often reflected by the sky.

INQUISITION
Deives into the Affairs of the Smaller Insurance Companies.

New York, Dec. 19.—The session of the insurance investigating committee was devoted to the smaller companies, those under examination being the Provident Savings, the Life Association of America and Empire Life. With the counsel of the President society were taken up several real estate transactions. The committee also heard testimony from a New York city property owner who was then made on the Senate floor, with the result that the building was returned to the possession of the society and the foreclosure of its real estate.

There appeared before the committee a number of witnesses, including a number of the smaller insurance companies, and the committee's expert testimony was given. The committee also heard testimony from a New York city property owner who was then made on the Senate floor, with the result that the building was returned to the possession of the society and the foreclosure of its real estate.

JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER IN HIS NEW WIG.

The Standard Oil magnate has recently made a marvelous change in his personal appearance by donning a well-fitting and artistic wig. His aggravated baldness makes him seem older than he really is, but the new device has the effect of restoring him to the middle aged class. He is reputed to be highly delighted over the metamorphosis.

QUIET AT CHEFOO

Disturbances at Shanghai are Producing no Visible Effect on the Chinese There.

Chefoo, Dec. 19.—The news of the disturbances at Shanghai is producing no visible effect on the Chinese, and at present it seems improbable that the trouble will extend to this city. The local foreign officials, however, are conferring in regard to taking suitable action to forestall a possible demonstration. Well-informed persons maintain that the Lienshan massacre and also the present disturbances are directly traceable to the boycott. Coincidentally with the Shanghai riots the Yokohama special bank quickly placed a large amount of money in the local market for the benefit of the Chinese.

Mutineers Punished.
Cronstadt, Russia, Dec. 19.—The military court has acquitted 18 out of 49 privates of the Cronstadt artillery who were charged with mutiny in connection with the recent outbreak here. The others were sentenced to terms of imprisonment ranging from two to 24 months.

Nitroglycerin Explodes.
Casey, Ill., Dec. 19.—Joshua Bailey and Warren Kendall were fatally injured while preparing nitroglycerin to shoot an oil well on the Stoltz farm, three miles north of here. The men were hurled high in the air and terribly mangled, and the derrick was destroyed.

Students' Appeal Denied.
New York, Dec. 19.—The appeal of Columbia students to continue their football association until next spring was denied by the faculty. The students had asked for the extension of this organization's life in order that Columbia might participate in any intercollegiate action taken to modify the game and make it more acceptable to the authorities who have abolished football at Columbia. The faculty stated that its own committee had sufficient power to represent Columbia at any conference on changing the rules.

Naval Official.
Washington, Dec. 19.—The navy department is informed that Medical Inspector David O. Lewis of the navy died suddenly of apoplexy at Honolulu on Dec. 15.

PACKERS' LAWYERS

Announce They Are Ready for Trial. Judge Says Cases Will Be Set Later.

Kansas City, Mo., Dec. 19.—Council for the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway, Swift & Company, Armour Packing company and the Cudahy Packing company, indicted in the federal grand jury for violations of the federal meat inspection law, appeared in the United States district court and announced that they were ready for trial. The cases were set for trial at St. Paul, Minn., on Jan. 10, 1906. The cases were set for trial at St. Paul, Minn., on Jan. 10, 1906. The cases were set for trial at St. Paul, Minn., on Jan. 10, 1906.

The validity of the Minnesota state law holding railroad companies responsible for injuries done to employees was brought before the federal supreme court.

THREE YEAR SEARCH

Is Rewarded by the Arrest of M. M. Letts, Formerly a Santa Fe Road Operator.

New York, Dec. 19.—M. M. Letts, formerly a telegraph operator in the employ of the Santa Fe railroad, was brought to this city from Colon, Panama, as a prisoner, charged with forgery and defaulting. He is in the custody of a Kansas City detective and an agent of the Santa Fe. Letts has been a station agent and postmaster in the canal zone. The search for Letts lasted three years.

Sisin by Yaquis.
Tucson, A. T., Dec. 19.—Hermosillo advices state that last Saturday afternoon a band of Yaqui Indians waylaid Fernando Maytorena, one of the wealthiest merchants in Sonora, Mexico, on the outskirts of the village of Maytorena, and killed him and his driver.

Protection For Americans.
St. Petersburg, Dec. 19.—On account of the situation at Moscow, Ambassador Meyer has requested the authorities to place at the disposal of the American consul there protection for Americans in case of an emergency.

GERMANY'S MOVE

Decision to Send Steamers to Russian Ports Regarded as Most Important Act.

Berlin, Dec. 19.—The decision of Chancellor von Buelow, with the approval of the emperor, to send German steamers to ports of the Russian Baltic provinces and bring away the Germans who are in danger of their lives, is regarded as a most important act and one that may be the first in a series of steps which the German government may deem necessary to safeguard the interests of German subjects whose estates are now being plundered or whose business is being ruined by the insurgents. A strong feeling exists among unofficial people over the murders of Germans and the attacks on them in large places, such as Riga and the extent of the loss of the Russian government to give them immediate protection.

Fatal Auto Accident.
Albany, Dec. 19.—The doctor held out little hope of saving the life of J. Walter Spalding of the firm of A. G. Stevens & Co., New York city, who was injured in an automobile accident near Mendon, Mass. The fatal blow was a fractured skull, and the other injuries were of a serious nature.

VERY MYSTERIOUS

Is Death of Saloonist Fred Schaefer at Parkersburg—Poisoning Suspected.

Parkersburg, W. Va., Dec. 19.—Fred Schaefer, a retired saloonist, was found dead at his home here. He was sitting in a chair while his wife was found unconscious in the same room. It is supposed that they were poisoned, but nothing is known as to the cause of their condition. They had not been seen since Saturday, when it is believed the poison was administered.

Four men were suffocated while dining in the naval steel works at Brest, France.

LIQUOR CASES

Decided by Mayor Bricker Tuesday Morning at Utica

DEFENDANTS ARE ALL FINED

BUT EACH GIVES NOTICE OF AN APPEAL TO HIGHER COURT

Evidence in These Cases Was Gathered Last Summer by Anti-Saloon League Detectives.

Utica, O., Dec. 19.—Mayor D. A. Bricker rendered his decision this morning in the liquor cases which were tried here ten days ago.

Dr. George W. Garrison was found guilty on two counts of writing prescriptions for liquor and was fined $75 and costs on each count.

M. V. Decker, clerk at Kirpatrick's drug store, charged with selling Duffy's malt whisky, was found guilty on two counts and was fined $50 and costs.

Mr. Kirpatrick was found guilty of selling liquor on prescription and was assessed a fine of $75 and costs.

Druggist Harry Rees for selling liquor on prescription, was fined $75 and costs on two counts.

The case of I. B. McClelland charged with running a "bootleg," is to come up in court in February.

Two detectives were sent here by the Anti-Saloon league last summer. They were Messrs. James and Rice, and it was they who secured the evidence upon which the cases were recently tried in Mayor Bricker's court. Lawyers Phil B. Smythe and Gil C. Daugherty of Newark represented the defendants. Lawyer Doty of Columbus represented the Anti-Saloon league. Notice of appeal from Mayor Bricker's decision was given and bond was fixed.

RIOTS AT SHANGHAI.

No Europeans Killed in the Outbreak. Trouble Squeezed.

Washington, Dec. 19.—The state department's information of the rioting at Shanghai was contained in several dispatches from Shanghai, the last from Consul General Rodgers. It is gathered that the moving causes for the riots were the anti-American boycott and a general feeling of hostility toward foreigners, such as preceded the Boxer uprising of 1900. Mr. Rodgers' statement was that all business was suspended among the Chinese; that as an incident to the general strike a number of foreigners had been assaulted. Volunteers had been called out, presumably from the people in the foreign settlements, whose efforts at maintaining order were seconded by English marines. The warships in the harbor were cleared for action. A later dispatch reported the continuance of the riotous condition, adding that the police stations had been burned, a number of people killed, probably about 30, including some foreigners. No Americans, however, had been injured.

Rioting Suppressed.
Shanghai, Dec. 19.—The riot is suppressed. Twenty Chinese rowdies were killed and a few Europeans were wounded. Otherwise the damage done was slight.

Police, sailors and volunteers co-operated in suppressing the riots, in the course of which one police station was partly burned, a barroom wrecked and a bicycle store looted. No European was killed.

REBATE CASE.

Harmon Comments on Letters of Roosevelt and Moody.

New York, Dec. 19.—Former Attorney General Judson Harmon, who was special counsel for the government in the rebate case against the Santa Fe railroad, gave out the following statement in connection with the letters made public in Washington: "The president and the attorney general seem to be contravening each other because the government lost its case against the Santa Fe Railroad company. If they were always so certain there was nothing in the case I do not understand why they turned it over to Mr. Judson and myself. The interstate commerce commission found and reported that the company had for years flagrantly broken the law against rebates. We refused to believe that the corporation had stopped out of night and handed over the rebates to the officers in charge of its traffic and we properly proceeded against them. This case is a disgrace to their open record."

RAILWAY AFFAIRS

John Doyle, one of the most popular conductors for the B. & O. railroad, is an applicant for the position of railway commissioner under the administration of Gov. Pattison. The editor of this paper has personally known Mr. Doyle for 25 years, and knows him to be a thoroughly upright and honorable citizen and an untiring Democrat. No mistake will be made if Mr. Doyle secures the appointment. The News extends best wishes for Mr. Doyle's success in securing the appointment.—Bethesda News.

B. R. T. Home.

The returns from over 700 lodges of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen have been received at Cleveland, upon a recent vote ordered to be taken in reference to building a home for the Brotherhood. The vote for and against the project is pretty evenly divided, and as the law requires two-thirds, the project will be tabled for the present.

J. E. Gould's Appointment.

J. E. Gould, formerly general foreman of the Denison shops of the Pan Handle railroad, has been appointed as superintendent of motive power of the Norfolk and Southern, to succeed J. Whetstone appointed to the position of marine superintendent.

Now With Long Land.

James A. McCrea who recently resigned his position as superintendent of the Pan Handle railroad at Cincinnati, has accepted the position of General Superintendent of the Long Island railroad. Mr. McCrea is 31 years old, and is a son of James McCrea, first vice president of the Pennsylvania railroad.

Big Demand for Equipment.

Never in the history of the country was there such a demand for railway rolling stock. Thousands of engines and passenger cars are being turned out annually. Freight cars without number are being constructed, but still the demand runs a great deal over the producing power of the shops. Already the railroads are looking toward Europe for relief and the spectacle may be witnessed within a short time of some American roads ordering cars in the old country.—Exchange.

Pullman's New Rule.

The Pullman company, actuated by numerous complaints, has promulgated a rule prohibiting the sale of drinks to passengers not occupying seats in buffet cars. If a passenger is on a buffet car he may satisfy his thirst, but if on a car which hasn't a buffet, he can no longer lean back in the seat and order a high ball from the porter.

"We have recently received several complaints about over indulgence on Sunday," said a Pullman official. "In an instance which came to my attention a man had so many drinks that he fell out of his berth twice in one night. I received letters very recently from women who complain that they are annoyed by men drinking in the next section to them."

The official said that Sunday card playing has never been permitted on Pullman cars.

B. & O. Follows Suit.

Baltimore, Dec. 19.—After December 21 the B. & O. railroad will abolish all forms of free or reduced rate transportation. In other words, there will be no passes issued to those who have enjoyed the courtesy outside of railroad officials. This announcement was made from the executive offices of the B. & O. The only exception to this rule in regard to passes is officers and employees of the B. & O. and connecting lines, to whom transportation will be issued as usual.

No Secret About It.

It has no secret, that for Cuts, Burns, Ulcers, Fever Sores, Sore Eyes, Boils, etc., nothing is so effective as Bucklen's Arnica Salve. "It didn't take long to cure a bad sore I had and it is all O. K. for sore eyes," writes D. L. Gregory, of Hope, Tex 25c. at Hall's drug store.

LOST HER LIFE

Did the Foolish Bird Which Knew No Better Than to Swallow a "V."

Thornville, O. (Beech Woods). Dec. 19.—E. J. Wright, a poultry dealer, while settling for a draft of chickens which he had bought of Bill Grubb at his home south of here accidentally dropped a five dollar gold piece which was noticed and picked up and swallowed by an old hen that proceeded to make her escape, but was finally run down and turned over to Wright for the usual compensation—but not her weight in gold. Wright slaughtered the fowl and recovered the "V."

Your eyes will see the Handsomest Neckwear in the city at Geo. Hermann's.

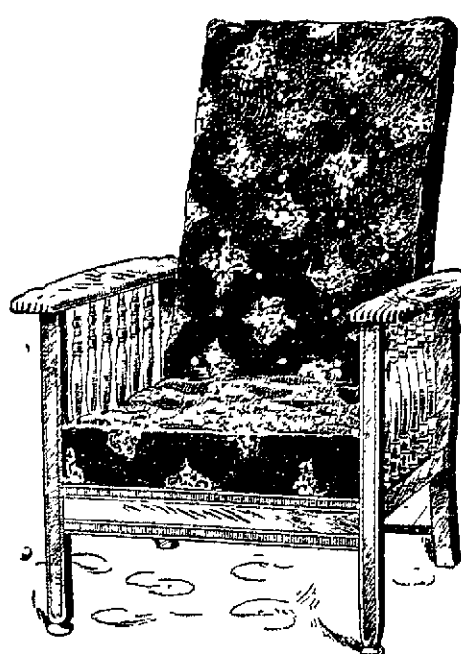

NOTICE.

Next regular meeting of Local 136 Carpenters' and Joiners of America will be held at their hall on December 19th, at 7 p. m., instead of December 18th, as previously announced. Full attendance is desired. J. M. Bell, Secy.—18-dt2

ON THE PRAIRIE

By HONORE WILLISIE

Copyright, 1905, by C. H. Satchell

As far as the eye could see the prairie stretched as smooth as a floor. Rhoda and little Dinny strolled on and on till the home paddock was only a dot against the blue sky line. Little Dinny started from one buttercup patch to another, with wild shrieks of delight in up-bellow glory. He pulled up great tangles of them, rolled over and over for beds of gold and covered his head with showers of their petals. Rhoda paid little heed to Dinny's play. The blue delight of the June skies might as well have been November gloaming for all the pleasure reflected in her brown eyes. The ranch walls seemed to stifle her lately. She had planned all night to take the boy and spend the lonely waking hours in the open. But now, with all the wide space of sky and prairie about her, her sense of desolation and disappointment seemed accentuated instead of lessened. She was tired of thinking, utterly weary of trying to straighten her endless tangle of questionings. She wanted to get away, to find complete rest. She wondered, in spite of the soft hand of Dinny in hers, if things might not have been vastly better had she never come west to the ranch with Donald. Somehow marriage was so different from her girlish dreams of it. And now at twenty-three, after five years, she was wondering if it really paid. Not but that Donald was kind, not but that he gave her all that he could of himself he could spare from the ranch. It was the hopeless stupidity of it that was wearing on her. Her life was made up of inanities. After the advent of Dinny and the continual surprise that he really was theirs, that he did smile, that it was a tooth and that he had taken a step nothing had occurred to disturb the

THERE WAS A MAD ROAR—A WILD SWIRL OF WIND.

she was to his existence. How little he cared, after all, so long as the household ran smoothly, whether or not her needs were filled. Rhoda stooped to pick up Dinny, who insisted that his bumped nose needed immediate attention. She sat down in a buttercup bed and looked at the child. He was very like his father, she thought. Pahl! How stupid it was merely to exist when she always had planned to live! The morning sun climbed steadily toward noon. But still Rhoda sat with the drowsy child in her lap and watched the black speck of the ranch house. Supposing that she went back no more, supposing that she plod on to the station with the child to take a train for home, as she still called the place of her childhood—well, and what then? Would she then cease to exist and begin to live, or would the old inanity of life soon overtake her even there? It might be worth the trial. But what of Donald? How would it affect him? Would he really be disturbed beyond the inconvenience it would make in his household arrangements, or were there quiet depths within him which she did not suspect? Far away toward the east she could see the dark line which meant that the men, with Donald, were "sorting" the herd. It would be long after dark before Donald came in. She took deep breaths of the prairie air, sweet with its long sweep over flower laden grass, clear and exhilarating as is no other air in the world. Nothing in her eastern home could compare with this, she thought. The ocean itself would seem too insistent, too restless, after the subtle beauty and peace of the prairies.

Dinny stirred in her arms and woke. She filled his hands with cookies and watched him as he ate, answering his questions in abstracted monosyllables. Suddenly he cried in a shrill little voice:

"Oh, mommie, what a funny cloud!" She looked lazily to the west; then started to her feet, Dinny in her arms. The air had grown suddenly unbearably oppressive. There was a strange thick haze over the prairie. Moving up from the west was the old familiar funnel shaped cloud which for the past five years had been her constant dread. The child, after a look at her white face, clung whimpering to her neck. For a moment she stood undecided. To run with the child in her arms was next to impossible. And, even so, of what use would it be to run when she was powerless to tell what would be the course of the tornado? She looked toward the faraway herding line. At that far distance it seemed immovable, yet she knew that already the herd was snorting and wild with fear. In the heavy silence her voice sounded loud and shrill.

"Dinny," she said, "we are going to lie down, with our faces in the grass, until the storm passes over us, and then we are going home, and mother will make you a gingerbread man for supper. Won't that be nice?" As she spoke Rhoda dropped the boy to the ground, and then, dropping beside him, she drew him close to her with one hand, shielding and protecting him with her body, while with the other hand she clung to a stubby briar root.

Then there were a mad roar, a sudden half darkness and a wild swirl of wind, then gradual quiet and freezing cold with great deluges of icy rain. When the first roar had died away in the distance Rhoda sat up. The tornado had passed between her and the ranch house. She pulled off her skirt and wrapped it about the child, who was limp and speechless with terror. She herself was strangely calm.

As the darkness lifted a little she tried to look off through the driving rain to the herding line, but she could see nothing. She lifted the child and with him in her arms struggled in the direction of the ranch house. Shipping, falling, wind whipped and half drowned, shivering with the cold, she struggled on and on.

Then through the swirl of the storm she heard hoof beats, then Donald's wild shout:

"Rhoda! Rhoda! Rhoda!" And her husband threw himself from his horse and clasped them both in his arms.

"Are you hurt? Oh, you poor, poor girl!" "Oh, Donald, Donald," she gasped. "Oh, no, I'm not hurt. Neither is Dinny."

"Dinny—oh, yes, Dinny, too, of course." And he took the little fellow from her and led her toward the house. "I went home for lunch," he panted. "To surprise you. They said you were out here. Then the tornado came, and—and I went mad, I guess."

"Donald," said Rhoda, raising her voice above the howl of the storm, "did you really care so much as that? Why, you even thought of me before you did Dinny. Did you really care so much, Donald?"

Donald looked down into her upturned face in dazed astonishment. "Care, Rhoda? I care? Care? Why, what else do I live for?" And he put her on the horse with a touch that thrilled her as of old. She looked down at the child as Donald laid him in her lap, and the thoughts of the morning, of the past years, came back to her.

"How could I have misunderstood so?" she asked herself. "What a fool a woman can be!"

Donald, leading the horse, could not hear, but she smiled happily at his back through the blinding rain and hugged the child to her with the old joy of living.

Bobby on the Zebra.

Little Bobby was asked to write a composition on some animal, and he wrote one on the zebra as follows:

"The zebra is a hobo horse that don't have to work, because it wears stripes. When men wear stripes they have to work harder than those that don't wear them, but the zebra loaf around the zoo all day, eating peanuts and doing nothing."—Baltimore News.

5225 Yoke Drawers, 22 to 32 Waist. YOKE DRAWERS 5225.

Well fitting undergarments are absolutely essential both to comfort and to style, inasmuch as no skirt can give a satisfactory effect if there be clumsy folds beneath. The drawers illustrated are cut on exceptionally desirable lines and provide sufficiently abundant fullness without unnecessary bulk while they are finished at the top with the shaped yoke that means perfect smoothness at the waist line. In the illustration long cloth is trimmed with embroidery but all materials that are used for garments of the sort are appropriate and the frills can be of embroidery or lace, of the material or of linen lawn as may be liked.

The drawers are absolutely simple, tucked at their lower edges and gathered at the upper where they are joined to the yoke. Draw strings are inserted in the back, which serve to regulate the size.

The quality of material required for the medium size is 2 yards 36 inches wide with 2 1/4 yards of embroidery three inches in width.

The pattern 5225 is cut in sizes for a 22, 24, 26, 28, 30 and 32 inch waist measure.

NEW M. E. CHURCH IS DEDICATED

GRATIOT CHURCH OPENED TO THE PUBLIC ON SUNDAY, DECEMBER 17.

New Edifice Dedicated Free of Debt—Pastor Deserves Much Commendation.

Gratiot, O., Dec. 19.—The dedication of the Methodist Protestant church at Gratiot Sunday, will be long remembered by the citizens of Gratiot and vicinity, as a day on which the new Methodist Protestant church was dedicated.

Rev. J. A. Selby, president of Muskingum M. P. Conference, of Mt. Vernon, O., assisted by Rev. D. C. Coburn, pastor of the Methodist Protestant church of Zanesville, and Rev. J. T. Black, pastor of the Methodist Protestant church, Roseville, O., also Rev. D. C. Wees of Brownsville circuit, which includes the church at Gratiot, performed the dedication ceremonies Sunday night.

The new church is a handsome frame building. The main room being 32 by 50 feet, with a lecture room 16 by 35 feet. The seating capacity is about 400. It is a church that the people of Gratiot and vicinity are justly proud of and one that would be an ornament to a town much larger than Gratiot.

The church is heated by a furnace and is furnished with the latest style of seats and windows. The building completed cost about $2,500 in cash and $1,500 in work and lumber donated, which would make the real value of the church $4,000.

About $700 was raised in subscriptions Sunday and the church was dedicated by the above named ministers on Sunday evening free of debt. The pastor, Rev. D. C. Wees, is especially to be commended for his faithful services and work in the church erected, as he not only looked after the spiritual welfare of the people but laid aside his best clothes on more than one day during the past season and assisted in the actual work on the new church.

"LANKY BOB" IN GOOD CONDITION

EXPECTS TO WIN FIGHT BEFORE THE FINISH OF THE TENTH ROUND.

The "Old Man" Looks For Odds of 10 to 7 Before Day Arrives for the Fight.

Chicago, Dec. 19.—"I will enter the ring in as good condition as I ever was in my life."
Bob Fitzsimmons expressed this opinion in a letter which Charles

BOB FITZSIMMONS.

Essig a local fight promoter, received from him. The "old man" declared that all reports sent out from San Francisco about his being unable to train for his bout with "Philadelphia" Jack O'Brien at San Francisco next Wednesday night were false, and that he would put up as good a battle as he ever did against Corbett, Jeffries or Sharkey. He closed by asserting that he was a safe betting proposition and would undoubtedly enter the ring favorite.

"As far as I can see now," he wrote, "I will be in tip-top condition for this fight." The reports sent out from here that I have found it impossible to train are all false. I have done good work, both in the gymnasium and on the road and feel that I will enter the ring in as good condition as I ever was in my life. I have not had a particle of trouble with my hands or feet and Return limit to reach original starting point not later than January 6, 1906.

For further information call on or address nearest B. and O. Ticket Agent, or B. N. Austin, General Passenger Agent, Chicago, Ill.

you are safe to bet that I can go through this fight, no matter how long it is. I expect to knock O'Brien out before the expiration of the tenth round. All my work has proved to me that I am just as good as I was when I met some champions, and I look as though I had ought to put away this fellow without any trouble."
The men will meet in Coffroth's Club in San Francisco for 60 per cent of the gross receipts. The winner is to get 65 per cent of the purse and the loser 35 per cent. According to the articles of agreement, both men are to be permitted to wear hard bandages and Fitzsimmons wrote that he will wear a pair of skin tight gloves beneath his boxing gloves. O'Brien will probably do the same, as he has had trouble with his hand. If the house is filled the gross receipts will amount to about $25,000.

JACK ROOT PICKS BOB FITZSIMMONS

AS WINNER OF FIGHT WITH JACK O'BRIEN ON NEXT WEDNESDAY.

Root Will Meet the Winner in January and Will Then Tour the World.

Massillon, O., Dec. 19.—Jack Root, the vanquisher in seventy-four out of seventy-six battles, was here last week with the Britt-Nelson moving picture show, doing a monologue turn. In an interview Root said "I pick Fitzsimmons to win in his coming fight with O'Brien. The grand old man is in as fit condition as he ever was in his life."

"I do not believe a word in the bear stories sent out about Bob. His maulers are just as good today as they ever were. His wind is all right, too, unless he is facing a crowd of reporters, when he pants like a deer after a twenty-five-mile run. Look out for the plungers getting a grand hooking up when they place their cash on O'Brien."

Root is in good condition. He says of himself and he looks it. He says: "I am to meet the winner of the Fitzsimmons-O'Brien fight in January. If present plans do not miscarry. After that bout in January there will be a change in the championship complexion of the map."

"After the fight in January," says Root, "I will make a trip around the world. Tom Ryan will accompany me as a sparring partner. We will give exhibitions in China, the Philippines, Australia, India, and I will endeavor to get on a bout with some European, preferably the English middle weight or heavyweight champion."

Root stands in well with the Jimmy Britt-Nelson clique. He says that another fight between the little fellows is an assured thing. The go will come off some time in the early spring. "And another record-breaking crowd will be at the ringside," says Root. "Battling" Nelson is my pick as the winner.

"Jim Jeffries is out of the business. I believe that he will never be seen in the ring again. Corbett and McCoy are dead numbers, and their recent fight talk is nothing but an attempt for newspaper advertising. Corbett had his nerve all taken when he met Fitz. It looks like Fitz and myself for the coming championship battle in January."

Huge Task.
It was a huge task, to undertake the cure of such a bad case of kidney disease, as that of C. F. Collier, of Cherokee, Ia., but Electric Bitters did it. He writes: "My kidneys were so far gone I could not sit on a chair without a cushion; and suffered from dreadful backache, headache and depression. In Electric Bitters, however, I found a cure and by them was restored to perfect health. I recommend this great tonic medicine to all with weak kidneys, liver or stomach. Guaranteed by Hall, the druggist; price 50c."

FOOTBALL HERO IS TOO EXALTED

GAME INJURIOUS TO SCHOOL AND COLLEGE LIFE IN AMERICA.

Writer in Success Magazine Treats on the Subject—Says Game Absorbs Under "Grad" Attention.

A writer in "Success" takes a big knock at football in the following words:

"The game of football has become seriously injurious to rational academic life in American schools and colleges. Some of the lesser objections to the game are its extreme publicity, the large proportion of injuries among the players, the absorption of the under-graduate mind in the subject for two months and the disproportionate exaltation of the football hero in the college world."

"The carrying into elaborate and highly artificial practice the enfolding theory that no team can do its best except in the presence of hosts of applauding friends is still another of the lesser evils of football. Worse preparation for the real struggles and contests of life can hardly be imagined. The orator, advocate, preacher, surgeon, engineer, banker, tradesman, craftsman, admiral, general or statesman who cannot do his best except in the presence of a sympathetic crowd is distinctly a second-class man."

"None of these things, however, enters into the main objection to the game, for the main objection lies in its moral quality."

"As developed in this country under fierce intercollegiate competition, it has become a game in which the actions of the individual players can often be entirely cancelled, not only from the mass of spectators or the benches, but from the nearer observers on the side lines and even from the umpire, who gets as near as possible to the combatants. The game is played under established and recognized rules, but the uniform enforcement of these rules is impossible and violations of the rules are in many respects highly profitable toward victory. These rules of action are all justifiable, and even necessary, in the consummate savagery called war, in which the immediate object is to kill and disable as many of the enemy as possible. To surprise, ambush and deceive the enemy and invariably to overwhelm a smaller force by a greater one are the expected methods of war. But there is no justification for such methods in a manly game of sport between friends. They are essentially ungenerous, and no sport is wholesome in which ungenerous and mean acts, which easily escape detection, contribute to victory, whether such acts be occasional and incidental, or habitual."

FRESHMAN TEAM

Of Denison Will Play Newark High's Basketball Team at Granville Tonight.

The High school basketball team will go to Granville tonight where a game has been arranged with the Freshman class of Denison. This is practically the first Denison team as all the players who will meet the Newark boys tonight, with one exception, are members of the first team. The Newark boys will line up as follows: Beecher and Bell, forwards; Prior, center; Hart and McFarland, guards; Stater, Lewis and Speer will accompany the team as substitutes. Prof. C. M. Bookman will referee the game.

TWO GAMES

Cancelled on Newark High's Schedule For Basketball—Central High Cancels.

Manager Jay McFarland of the High school basketball team, is having his share of trouble with his schedule which, he thought, was almost ready for announcement. He succeeded Charles M. Schwab as general superintendent of the Homestead Steel works and subsequently succeeded him as president of the Carnegie Steel company. Later on he succeeded Mr. Schwab again in an important post—the presidency of the United States Steel corporation. In this position he has drawn a salary of $75,000 a year. Rumors of his resignation from this post in consequence of his domestic troubles have been in circulation. His wife is now in Nevada and is said to have instituted divorce proceedings.

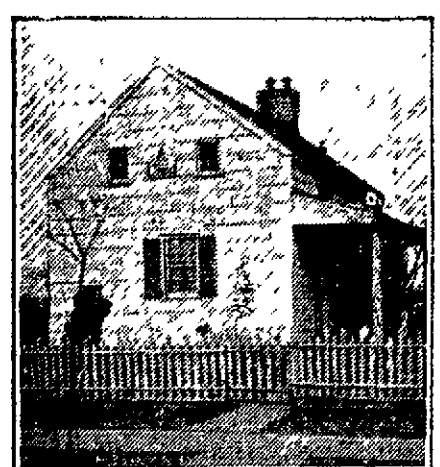

Eileen Terry's Scream.
Miss Eileen Terry is said to have "achieved her first stage distinction by screaming." In a play bearing the outlandish title of "Altair Geel" she had to take a snake round her neck and scream, and so realistic was her simulated horror at the situation that the scream electrified the house.

THE OLD POE COTTAGE.

A Reminder of Sad Scenes in the Life of a Poet.

Many admirers of Edgar Allan Poe have made pilgrimages to the cottage in which the poet spent some of the most melancholy hours of a most melancholy life. This cottage is at Fordham, once a Dutch village and in Poe's time quite a distance from the city of New York, but now well within the limits of the Greater New York and a part of the borough of Bronx. The cottage is near the old Kingsbridge road and is not far from Bronx park, where a famous zoological collection attracts thousands of visitors on pleasant Sunday afternoons. It is but one story and a half in height, and on the first floor are three rooms, one of them a kitchen. The second story is scarcely more than an attic, but in one of the small rooms, that in the southwest corner, the poet's beautiful wife, Virginia Clemm Poe, wasted away with consumption and died at last in the midst of extreme privation. She married Poe when hardly more than a child, and though he was devoted to his young and frail partner, her short life was full of hardships, for the genius of Poe was not recognized then as it has been since, and the rewards of his literary labors were small. There is a story that she was wrapped up in her husband's overcoat in her last hours because the family did not have enough bedclothing to keep her warm. Whether this is true or not, it is certain that they were very poor, and a neighbor who had Mrs. Poe's body out for burial has said that she and other women who lived near by furnished the burial clothes. It was in 1845, just before coming to live in this cottage, that Poe wrote "The Raven." His wife died in 1847, and in the two following years, while still living at Fordham, Poe produced some of his best works, but they were years of extreme melancholy, and the poet's frame of mind was reflected in the sad but beautiful "Ulalume" and "Annabel Lee," which he composed in the study of the Fordham cottage or while pacing the little veranda in front and gazing at the stars.

THE POE COTTAGE AT FORDHAM.

WILLIAM E. COREY.
Head of Steel Trust, Whose Marital Affairs Have Attracted Notice.
William Ellis Corey, the head of the gigantic steel trust, whose marital troubles have recently attracted attention, is one of the younger set in high finance and reached eminence in the business world at an age when many men are just starting out on the road to success. He was born in 1866 at Braddock, Pa., and obtained his first job at sixteen in the laboratory of the Edgar Thomson Steel works. In his spare time he studied chemistry. His work and ability soon attracted notice, and he was sent to the order department of the Homestead Steel works. At twenty-one he was appointed superintendent of the plate mill and open the Teban-tepec railroad in Mexico and its terminal ports on the Atlantic and Pacific sides.

Sir Weetman was born in 1856 and is now at his prime as a man of affairs. He was first chosen to parliament in 1892 and in 1894 was created a baronet in recognition of his engineering achievements. In 1891 he married Annie, daughter of the late Sir John Cass of Bradford, and they have a son, Clive, now taking his course at Oxford, and a daughter, who recently married Lord Denman. The Pearsons dispense a lavish hospitality at their London home, Carlton House Terrace, and, though Sir Weetman is fond of good living, he is not an aristocrat, but is democratic in manners and a thorough man of business. In the boring of the tunnels under the East river the English contractor makes it his policy to employ for the most part American labor and American tools and materials. His firm obtained the contract in competition with American contractors. He comes to this country several times a year, as a rule, to supervise the work and also spends much time in Mexico, where he has on hand even a larger project than the tunneling of the East river. It was his firm which constructed the Vera Cruz harbor works, costing $3,000,000, and the great $15,000,000 canal which drains the valley of Mexico. By the Teban-tepec railroad with its terminals on the east and west of the continent, the Mexicans hope to compete successfully with the Panama canal for trans-continental traffic. The road from sea to sea is now practically completed. The task involved the boring of several tunnels through the mountains and the construction of several splendid steel bridges. It also involved the construction of harbors at either end of the road, a task of greater magnitude and more engineering difficulties than the building of the railroad itself. An idea of the extensive character of the work may be obtained from the fact that at Rincon Antonio a new town has been built, with all facilities for making the life of the company's employees agreeable and homelike, including church, clubhouse, company stores and lodger rooms for societies.

WILLIAM E. COREY.

It is said that Sir Weetman Pearson is proudest of having built the Blackwell tunnel under the Thames. Engineering difficulties were encountered and overcome in this work that made subsequent tasks seem easy.

Sir W. Pearson Builder of Great Tunnels

A GREAT engineering work is in progress in New York city where the waters of the East river flow placidly on their course between the foot of Thirty-fourth street, Manhattan borough, and part of the borough of Queens, known as Long Island City. It is here that four tunnels are being bored under the river for the use of the Pennsylvania and Long Island railroads. Before long trains from the west will pass through the Pennsylvania tunnels under the North river and under the streets and skyscrapers of the borough of Manhattan to the great station down underground in the center of the city's busiest district. Nor will they stop here, for some will continue on their way until they have passed under the East river and emerged into the sunlight again, when they will speed on till the farthest point of Long Island is reached and there deliver their passengers and freight to ships waiting to take them across the ocean.

The construction of these four parallel tunnels under a mighty stream like the East river is a task of enormous magnitude, yet it is only one among many large enterprises which claim the attention of the English contractor, Sir Weetman D. Pearson, M. P. He is the head of the firm of S. Pearson & Son, Limited, of London, and, besides attending to big engineering projects in different parts of the world, looks out for the constituency of Colchester in parliament. He is rarely heard in the house of commons, but that is because he is a man of deeds rather than words. The firm of which he is the head was founded by his grandfather, the S. Pearson whose name appears in the title of the firm now. His father was the late George Pearson, and the firm has long enjoyed a high reputation, but during Sir Weetman's time its work has taken on greater importance than in earlier years. One of the large enterprises now in charge of the firm is the reconstruction and completion of

MAYOR RINNER IS
AFTER GAMBLERSSOCIETY CARD PARTY PRIZES
UNDER THE BAN IN
COSHOCTON.Fifty Shocks of Corn Stolen Near Roscoe—Charged With Jumping a Board Bill.

Coshocton, O., Dec. 19.—Mayor Rinner is out with a proclamation against the slot machines and every form of gambling or games of chance. Those who entertain with a pedro party and play for a prize are liable to arrest and fine.

"The proclamation means exactly what it says," remarked the mayor. "There is no middle ground. The ordinance is plain. The reference to card parties for prizes is simply that it is a form of gambling. Of course I shall not have the police 'raid' a home where a card party is in progress, but if we can learn of any we shall give the entertainers notice that it is an infraction of the law, and a second offense will mean arrest and fine. There is nothing else to do."

Bold thieves stole things by the wagon load in Jackson township last week. It has been discovered that 50 shocks of fodder were stolen Wednesday night from a field owned by Jas. Chaney, near the aqueduct close to Roscoe. The fodder belonged to Addison Huff. Certain men were seen that night hauling fodder after dark and suspicion rests upon them. There may be arrests as the claw looks good. Fifty shocks of fodder would make about three big wagon loads.

H. C. Wilcox, a traveling cigar salesman, was arrested at his home in Columbus Saturday on a charge of jumping a board bill preferred by Proprietor Ball of the Park hotel of this city. Chief Mapel went to Columbus Sunday and brought the prisoner to this city. An effort is being made by Wilcox to settle the bill and avoid prosecution.

SCHOOL BOARD

Held a Short Session Monday Night and Very Little Business Was Done.

The Board of Education held a short session Monday evening and a very little business was brought before those present.

The usual bills were presented and allowed. Lippincott's third book on physiology was selected to be adopted for the eighth grades. The book to be used in the High school was not decided upon. Monograph XLII. of the geological survey was selected for the High school.

Mr. Fisher, of Piqua, was present in the interest of school desks. None were decided upon, however.

The board expects the new Wood-side building to be read for use by February 1, 1906. The work on the building is progressing rapidly. The finishing on the inside of the structure will be commenced soon.

Complete Recovery Expected. Herbert Osborne, the B. & O. brakeman who suffered severe injuries in a railroad accident in Zanesville, last Wednesday, has been operated on, and hopes are now entertained of his recovery. It was found while the patient was under the knife that but one vertebra had been fractured while another had been dislocated. Hopes are now entertained of his complete recovery.

NOTICE.

I want to save all the evergreen trees and shrubbery about the Black Hand rocks for park purposes. Therefore any person or persons cutting or destroying same will be promptly arrested. Jesse E. Seeling. 15-d6t

AT GRANVILLE

Large Audience Assembled To Hear
Selections from the Messiah at Baptist Church.

Granville, O., Dec. 19.—On Monday evening one of the largest and most appreciative audiences that has assembled in the Baptist church this season came together on Monday evening, when selections from Handel's Oratorio of the Messiah were given by the choir of the Baptist church, together with Mrs. Clara Turpin Grimes, soprano, of Dayton, Miss Jennie Blinn, conductor, Miss Elizabeth Benedict, organist. The work of both soloists and the choruses were especially fine and much credit is due Miss Blinn and Miss Benedict for the successful carrying out of the following program:

Overture Organ
Recitative (Bass). Thus saith the Lord
Cantus. And the Glory of the Lord
Recitative, (Contralto)
Behold a virgin shall conceive
Aria (Contralto) O Thou that tellest
Chorus O Thou That Tellest
Recitative (Bass). Behold darkness
Aria (Bass)
The people that walked in darkness
Chorus. For unto us a child is born
Aria (Soprano) Rejoice greatly
Pastoral Symphony Organ
Recitative (Contralto) Then shall the eyes of the blind be opened
Aria (Contralto) He shall feed his flock
Aria (Soprano) Come unto Him
Chorus Behold the Lamb of God
Aria (Contralto) He was despised
Aria (Bass) Why do the nations
Aria (Soprano)
I know that my Redeemer liveth
Chorus Hallelujah
Some comment and considerable difference of opinion exists regarding the request for the audience to stand during the singing of the Hallelujah chorus. A great many maintain that if the music is rendered in the work in an exact manner, the audience will arise from a natural impulse, rather than from request. However, it is a very effective custom of showing reverence.
At the close of the program an informal reception was held in the Conservatory in honor of the soloists.
